JAPANESE WARSHIP DIVERTED TO FOOCHOW

MONETARY POLICY

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN DISCUSSIONS

WALL STREET NOT INTERESTED

New York, Aug. 28. Wall Street appears to be taking little if any interest in the meeting between President Roosevelt, Mr. Montagu Norman (of the Bank of England) and Mr. Harrison (Governor of the Federal Reserve Board).

It is believed that the subject under discussion concerns the monetary policies of the United States and Great Britain, with a view to an adjustment to a common policy.

Important decisions may possibly be reached, but so little is known about the progress of the talks or their nature that it was not surprising to find that there was no reaction on the foreign exchange market, which showed little activity.—Reuter.

GOLD PRICES FALL

London, Aug. 28. To-day's fall of 7½d in the price of gold caused some profit taking but not enough to withstand the demand for gold shares and substantial advance were made.

Kaffirs were mainly affected but West African Indians and West Australians all went up.

Johannesburg telegrams report excited dealings upon which to-day's drop in the gold price had only a slight effect. The other main feature on the London Stock markets to-day was the continuance of the steady rise in Home rails. British funds were inactive. War Loan 3½ per cent. being quoted a 99½.—British Wireless.

RECOVERY PLAN DELAYS

Scheme for Applying Pressure

New York, Aug. 28. Methods of speeding up the Recovery Plan were discussed at Hyde Park to-day, in conversations between President Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes, the Secretary for the Interior.

After the conference, Mr. Ickes declared himself in favour of the withdrawal of allotments from the Recovery Fund in cases where the projects were not started within a specified period.—Reuter.

WHEAT ACREAGE REDUCTION

DEFINITE DECISION TAKEN IN U.S.

Washington, Aug. 28. Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, has formally announced that a fifteen per cent. reduction in American wheat acreage will be undertaken during the coming season.—Reuter.

FOOD PRICES IN U.S.A.

Washington, Aug. 28. The Labour Department has issued a statement containing a survey of retail food prices in the United States.

The statistics show that groceries in America to-day cost approximately eighteen per cent more than they did in April, which was the year's lowest level.—Reuter.

TIENTSIN TRAIN RAID

TWO CASUALTIES IN BANDIT COUP

BIG HAUL BY EX-SOLDIERS

Tientsin, Aug. 29. One railway guard was killed and a Chinese passenger was wounded following a sensational bandit coup on one of the trains of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway on Sunday evening.

Twelve bandits boarded the train and searched all the passengers, taking away booty consisting of valuables, money and other belongings totalling many thousands of dollars.

The bandits, it is now ascertained, boarded the train at Tsing Hai Station and decamped at the Hing Tse Station.

The railway authorities suspect that the gang was composed of men who were formerly troops under Cheng Kwei-lin.

The passengers' description of the bandits leads to the belief that some of them fought recently against the Japanese.

He is authorised to enter into all commercial transactions on their behalf and, accordingly, the Government of the U.S.S.R. will accept full responsibility for all obligations entered into by M. Oserksy acting for and on behalf of that Government.—British Wireless.

HONGKONG TRIP CALLED OFF

REAR-ADMIRAL ABOARD INCOGNITO

SAGA TO STAY IN CANTON

In view of the Communist entry into north-west Fukien the Japanese cruiser, Ise, which was due in Hongkong to-day on an informal visit, has been diverted to Foochow to watch Japanese interests there.

Aboard the Ise is Rear-Admiral Yamanouchi who is stated to be travelling as a passenger. The reason given to the Telegraph at the Japanese Consulate this morning for this was that it was not intended that the Admiral should exchange formal calls with the Hongkong Government.

In the event of the trouble in Fukien not proving to be serious, the Ise will return from Foochow to Makong.

The Communist advance has caused no little concern, and the United States authorities have advised all American subjects in the area to withdraw to the coast. As a result most of the American missionaries in that region travelled by boat down the Min River to Foochow on Sunday, although three Catholic Fathers have preferred to stay at their post at Kienningfu for the present.

Yenping, which is not strongly held, has been reinforced by 1,000 men of the 19th Route Army to meet the Communist advance.

The Japanese warship, Saga, which was coming to Hongkong to meet the Ise, is staying in Canton.

The flying boats made their first stop at Felixstowe and are proceeding to Esbjerg, Copenhagen and Stockholm and then to Helsinki. By the time they return they will have covered approximately 3,500 sea miles.—British Wireless.

GOLF TITLE BID

A GOOD START BY MISS WILSON

LEADS AMERICANS BY 2 STROKES

New York, Aug. 28. Miss Enid Wilson, Britain's foremost lady golfer, who is making a further bid to capture the American title, revealed splendid form in the qualifying round to-day.

The championship is this year being played over the Exmoor Country Club's course near Highland Park, Illinois, and a medal round of eighteen holes was played to-day, the best sixty-four scores qualifying.

Miss Enid Wilson returned a card of 76, two better than her nearest American rivals.

The leading American players were bunched in second place, Miss Orcutt, Miss van Wile and Miss Helen Hicks all returning cards of 78.

It will be recalled that after winning the British Ladies' open championship once again, Miss Enid Wilson declared her intention of giving up competitive golf. She was, however, unable to resist the temptation of making one more attempt to win the American title.—Reuter.

SINO-RUSSIAN TRADE

Shanghai, Aug. 29. Great progress has been made in connexion with the projected formation of a gigantic $8,000,000 Sino-Russian Trade Corporation with head offices in Shanghai and Tientsin for the import and export of goods from and to Russia, which is expected to commence business within three months.

Chinese financiers have subscribed $2,000,000. Russian timber and oil constitute the major line of import goods, while Chinese silk and tea are amongst the export items. The export department

SWISS FRONTIER INCIDENT

STRONG PROTEST LODGED VIOLATION BY GERMANS

Basle, Aug. 28. The Swiss Government has lodged a formal protest in Berlin against the repeated violation of the Swiss frontier by German agents, apparently over-zealous Nazi leaders.

A storm of indignation is sweeping through Switzerland as a result of the incursions into Swiss territory.

The latest incident concerns a Czech-Slovakian. It is fairly well known that he has been smuggling sugar into Germany, but the fact remains that he was in Swiss territory, near the border, when three Germans crossed, seized him and dragged him into German territory.

A Swiss Customs officer who witnessed the incident attempted to rescue the victim, but single-handed he was outwitted in the struggle.

A little while back, two Swiss policemen were arrested on island (which the German claimed to be German territory) on a charge of being Communists.—Reuter.

WAR PERIL IN PACIFIC

WIND-UP OF BANFF CONFERENCE

NEW ZEALAND WARNING

Banff, Aug. 28. The war menace in the Pacific occupied the thought of most of the delegates at the concluding session of the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations to-day.

A very strong warning was, for instance, delivered by the New Zealand Finance Minister, Mr. Downie-Stewart, who, in a striking speech, declared his conviction that unless immediate steps were taken to create a peace machinery, there was grave danger of war.

Tentative plans for the formation of a Pacific Socialist organization, sponsored by Lord Snell, the well-known British Labour Peer, were submitted to the Conference with the object of furthering the movement for a League of Pacific Nations in order to ensure peace and to solve mutual economic problems.

BENEFICIAL AND AMICABLE.

No resolutions were passed by the Conference, but the heads of the various delegations announced that the meetings had proved most illuminating, beneficial and amicable, despite the controversial aspect of many of the questions which were discussed.—Reuter.

INTERNATIONAL CODE OF SIGNALS

Comes into Operation on Jan. 1 Next

London, Aug. 28.

The Board of Trade announces that the new international code of signals, notified last year, will come into international use on January 1, 1934.

The British, French, German and Norwegian editions of the code have already been published, while of the remaining, editorial editions by Japan, Spain and the United States are expected before the end of the year. The British edition consists of two volumes the first dealing with the visual and sound signalling, and the second with Radio signalling. The latter provides for the first time an official international wireless telegraphy code issued specially for the use of merchant shipping and air services.

The Medical section embodies a complete case—stating system and list of standard quarantine messages. The Board expresses the hope that all ships' Masters and Officers will familiarise themselves with the new international code before its introduction.—British Wireless.

They shouted "strike him" and rushed at the farmer with their fists. One then picked up a heavy pole and with this struck the farmer a blow which caused him to fall backwards.

WEDNESDAY SHOCKED

LOSE AT HOME TO ASTON VILLA

GREAT DAY FOR LONDON CLUBS

London, Aug. 28.

There was a startling reversal of form when Sheffield Wednesday and Aston Villa met to-day in a league match. The Wednesday were beaten before their own supporters by the odd goal in three.

On Saturday, they visited Manchester City and won 3-2, whereas the Villa, on their own ground, lost to Leicester.

Tottenham, one of the promoted teams, are going great guns. They followed up their clever draw at Sheffield against the United on Saturday with a very decisive victory at White Hart Lane against Wolverhampton. They pierced the Wolves' defence four times without reply.

Leicester also continued to show winning form and proved their victory against the Villa was no flash in the pan. They trounced the United by four goals to nil.

London teams had a good day. In addition to the Spurs, Fulham recorded a victory at Craven Cottage, Millwall won at home against Swansea, Clapton Orient took points from Newport, leaving Charlton the only losing Metropolitan club.

Norwich enjoyed recording the biggest score of the day, when they rattled up seven against Bristol City.

Reading could not sustain their form of Saturday and visited Cardiff to lose by two clear goals.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE CHIC

Clip-On Watch Keeps the Minutes in Sight

"Clocking" smart women on their daily round of social or business engagements this summer, a clip-on watch which fastens onto their purses, belts or linen coat lapel is something brand new and very handsome. The watch is made of real gold, in a modernistic design that is highly ornamental. It has little touches of enamel, green in this instance, and is worn on the newest summer purse of corded beige fabric.

YOUR CHILDREN

Let Little Girls Rough
It, Too!

By Olive Roberts Barton.

"Julia, come away, dear, over in your own garden. You'll get all dirty."

"I'm just watching Jack wash his dog, mother. I'll not get dirty."

"Yes, you will. He'll be shaking himself in a minute, and that's a clean dress."

Julia ran through the hole in the dividing hedge and with the hedge as a shield continued to watch Sport being alternately soaped and hosed.

"Don't rub against the branches, dear. They're thorny and they pull out little threads all over."

"But I can't see when I stand back."

"Let's go in the house and find a book."

"I'm tired looking at books."

"Here—I'll take off some of my yarn and teach you to crochet.
You can make your doll a sweater."

Dull Pastime

Julia tried to be interested but her mother showed all the enthusiasm. The little girl patiently tried to keep the yarn hooked over her left forefinger while she picked up a loop and pulled it through.

It was awkward. Crocheting she decided was undoing what you had done and wishing all the time you could throw the whole business down and stamp on it.

"I wish I had a dog, mother."
"They're so dirty."
"I could wash him."
"That isn't work for a girl."

"Mother, Aunt Anne allows Eleanor to climb trees."

"I know, Eleanor will never be a lady. She is just a tomboy!"

"Don't you like tomboy girls?"
"Indeed no."

"I do. I think they have a lot of fun."

"Maybe they do but they are always making work for somebody.
Torn clothes, big washings, and cuts and scratches to be patched up."

"Aunt Anne says it's good exercise."

"Humph! Aunt Anne! Well, there is going to be one lady in the family and that's you, my dear. The proper place for exercise is in a gymnasium. You got plenty in school and I've signed you up for three classes a week at the club now."

"Mother, my finger's tired. Can I get my rolled skates?"

No, go and get a book. Or just sit still—it's nice out here on the verandah. Don't always be wishing you were doing something else. I'll have Helga bring out some lemonade and sandwiches."

Longing for Action

Little Julia starved for real activity and interest and a slave to clean dresses and ladylike manners rushed in the house to cry into the sofa pillows.

Her mother was distressed. "A common streak in her somewhere!" she murmured. "A decided common streak. It isn't on my side. All the Wallaces were ladies."

How wrong she was. All little girls need to rough it. They like to play boys. They need to play like boys. It is nature and nature is never common.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Superfluous Hair-Raising Advice

By Alicia Hart.

One of the most frequent questions asked a beauty editor is what to do about superfluous hair. It is true that superfluous hair can be a constant source of annoyance.

Hair under the arms can be removed without danger with a razor.
Simply shave it all off as often as you think it necessary. If your skin feels irritated use a little cold cream or perhaps a mild antiseptic.
Do not use a deodorant directly after shaving under your arms.

Wax is probably the most effective method of removing superfluous hair from the arms and legs.
Most beauty product manufacturers have a wax made especially for this purpose. You melt it a little, smooth it on over your arms and legs and give the wax a few minutes time to allow it to harden.
When it seems to be "set," loosen a couple of the edges so you can get a firm grip and then pull it all off as you remove adhesive tape. The hair pulls off with the wax. The object is to use wax until the roots become so weakened that they will not grow any more.

Superfluous hair on the face can be removed by an electric needle.
But you have to find a reliable skin specialist and have it done by him.
Don't go to an amateur!

Bleaching is an excellent means of making the superfluous hair on your face, arms and legs so light in colour it doesn't show.

There are many adequate bleaching creams on the market to-day and it may be well worth your while to invest in one. Peroxide is a well-known bleaching agent. Always use cream after the peroxide has dried and been washed off.

For a girl to reveal her
form.

SALESMAN SAM

Or Longer, Maybe!

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE HAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLE HAINES, advertising manager of Hainey's department store, secretly married DICK HADER, a construction engineer. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. The same day Eve learns that she is to go to New York for the store and must leave that night. Dick takes her to the station but throughout the week in New York she has no word from him. The days there are busy. She meets THERON REECE who is much attracted by her and she visits IRENE PRENTISS, a former schoolmate who is playing the stock market and advises Eve to do the same.

CHAPTER VII

Eve and Dick stayed at the Hotel Miramar for a week. They usually dined in the marine dining room overlooking the lake. Eve enjoyed the formality of their surroundings and each evening wore a different costume. She had a flair for clothes and was aware that, though many of the women about her were gowning more expensively, few wore smarter costume. And because she was happy her eyes glowed and smiles curved her lips. When she looked at Dick, correct in his severe evening clothes, she was proud of him.

"Dick," she began enthusiastically the fourth night of their stay at the Miramar, "I've an idea!"

"You're full of ideas," teased Dick. "What is it now?"

"Let's always dress for dinner. There's no reason why people who have fortunes should monopolize all the niceties of life. It's fun to change into evening clothes for dinner. Don't you think so?"

"M-m," answered Dick. "Then we'll do it always! Oh, Dick, I'm so glad you see things as I do. You're a perfect dear to agree with me all the time. I'd hate to have just an ordinary husband. You will let me plan everything the way I want it, won't you, dear?"

"M-m," answered Dick. After dinner he suggested going out to watch the skating. They put on warm wraps and trudged through the snow over the deserted bridge path to the lake.

"Reminds me of the lake at home," said Dick. "I'd like to be out on the ice now. Haven't skated for 10 years. My old skates got too short and I never seemed to have money to buy new ones."

"Oh, Dick," Eve interrupted him, "I've just had a grand idea for the lead for my column tomorrow! I can scarcely wait to write it. See the red and white outfit that girl is wearing? It gave me the idea. Here she comes now. Why, as I live and breathe, it's Gladys Rippell! Dick, let's leave. If we want to keep our marriage a secret we can't afford to be meeting people we know."

Eve turned back toward the hotel and Dick followed reluctantly. He would have enjoyed skating in the moonlight on the frozen edge of the lake.

He took Eve's arm to keep her from slipping on the icy walk. "Eve, sweetheart," he said, "I don't like keeping our marriage a secret. As far as I'm concerned there are few to whom it matters, but you, dear, have so many friends in the city that it is bound to cause complications."

"I'm thinking of my position," she said. "We'll announce it later." With this Dick had to be content.

Each morning he drove to "the job" before 7:30. Eve, in her smart black business clothes, boarded an eight o'clock trolley. She never glanced at the morning Times until she reached the older district of the city where the street were lined with stores and office buildings. Instead she looked at the beautiful homes along the boulevard over which she rode. Eve wondered about the people who lived in those houses and was sure she could never be contented until she had such a home.

The apartment at the hotel would do, however, she told herself, until she and Dick could afford a home like one of those.

Her promotion at the office had not brought with it the satisfaction Eve had expected. She had not realized how much Alice Marshall had smoothed her way and made things easy for her.

Eve was particularly annoyed by Barnes' habitual tardiness in deciding how much space was to be devoted to each advertisement. This delay often made it necessary for her to prepare her copy at a speed making careful work impossible. Inevitably there came a day when she was obliged to remain an hour over time.

True, Barnes and Arlene were also detained, but that did not lessen Eve's resentment. She knew that if Barnes had been prompt the work easily could have been completed by 5:30, the store's closing hour.

Eve was anxious not to give Dick any cause to resent her work. She suspected that secretly he cherished an ideal of a home-keeping wife who would be watching for him at the window when he came each evening. Dick's work kept him outdoors much of the time and he always arrived with a healthy appetite. Eve seldom was ready for dinner before seven. This evening it was nearly eight, but Dick did not complain.

Saturday night came and the hotel held its weekly dinner dance. Eve wore the gown of pale gold lace that she had worn on her visit to the night club in New York with Theron Reece.

As she turned from the mirror she called to Dick: "I'm so happy, dear! I think this is the most adorable place to live. And I love dressing for dinner."

"It would be nice if we could stay on here," Dick agreed. "But I suppose since to-morrow is Sunday we can drive around and try to locate a place to settle in."

Something froze in Eve. She asked, ever so quietly, what Dick's plans were.

"We'll have to find a place with a salary," he told her.

"But we have two incomes!"

"We're not counting on anything you may earn," Dick announced with finality. "Your money is yours to do with as you please. If I were you I'd back that money. You may do as you like, however. I'll never question you about it. But I am going to support our homes on my income and I will endeavour to add to our savings each payday."

Eve was not in the most pleasant frame of mind as they descended to the dining room. She had been enjoying the luxury of the past week and saw no reason why she and Dick should not combine their incomes and continue this mode of living which, she felt, would leave them free from the petty cares of the average young married couple.

"Dick," she began after the waiter took their order, "I don't want to argue but it seems only fair to remind you that we agreed marriage was a fifty-fifty proposition. So I want to pay my share."

"Successful marriage is always a fifty-fifty proposition," Dick agreed. "But that doesn't necessarily apply to finances the way you mean. I should say it is important for each always to meet the other half way. What I mean is, turn for turn and fair play."

Eve recalled Dick's noncommittal, "M-m," each time she had thought she had scored a victory. She took her cue and said, "Let's have a marriage free from quarrels, too, Dick. Each of us will always think of the other's side of the question, won't we?"

"That's the only kind of a marriage I will have," he answered with emphasis.

Eve was determined to enjoy the present and let the future take care of itself. No need to hurry in locating another apartment. She would meet that unpleasant contingency when it arrived.

So she smiled brightly and said, "In the meantime on with the dance."

They danced between courses. It was until after they had finished dinner that Eve saw Theron Reece.

He had just entered the dining room with a vivacious looking girl. The couple lost no time in getting on the dance floor. Reece's glance swept the restaurant and he saw Eve at once. She looked away but the crowd was not large and before the dance was concluded she was forced to return Reece's nod of recognition. Evidently he was determined to continue their acquaintance. A shadow of apprehension clouded Eve's sky. She hoped Reece had not noticed her wedding ring.

"Let's go now, Dick," she said when they returned to their table. He agreed without asking any questions.

But Reece was not to be disposed of so readily. He approached, bowing, and said, "Good evening, Miss Bayless."

Eve felt a sudden panic but managed to introduce the men without disclosing the fact that Dick was her husband. Before Reece could begin conversation she arose for another dance with Dick.

After all, she reasoned, it was not strange that Reece should be there. Much business was conducted between Lake City and Cincinnati and Reece, a salesman, lived in the latter place. The marine dining room of the Hotel Miramar was an attractive restaurant and it was natural for him to dine there. But Eve felt she wanted to leave the Miramar before her joy was spoiled.

So she said to Dick, "I think, darling, it might be fun to look for an apartment to-morrow. We will get up early and not lose any time."

She could not resist one guarded glance toward Reece's table as Dick guided her toward the door. There was something sinister in Reece's dark eyes as his glance met and locked with hers.

WORLD CRISIS A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer, and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme. The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—

MISSIONARIES LEAVE YENPING AREA

Peking, Aug. 28. The United States authorities, in view of the Communist entry into north-west Fukien, have advised all American subjects in the affected area around Yenping to withdraw to the coast. As a result, most of the American missionaries in that region arrived in Foochow on Sunday, coming by boat down the Min River.

Three Catholic fathers are remaining at Kienningfu, preferring to stay at their post for the present. Yenping, which is not too strongly held, has now been reinforced by 1,000 men of the famous 19th Route Army, to meet the Communist advance.—Reuter.

THE UNIVERSAL TONIC For Blood & Nerves.

In seventy-two countries and under the most varied climatic conditions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills still maintain the reputation they achieved fifty years ago. Over all this long period sick people have continued to find new health and strength and relief from weakness in the blood-creating, nerve-strengthening properties of this supremely successful remedy.

There have been many emulators of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills; but the formula of this blood and nerve tonic was the great achievement of a distinguished medical practitioner and since its discovery none of its imitators has succeeded in producing anything which so rapidly re-establishes the blood stream. During the past half century many tests have been made upon the formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. And recently very searching group tests were conducted by a highly qualified physician to gauge the exact effect of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the bloodstream of anemic cases.

The results of these tests demonstrated in a degree which astonished the physician that the formula increased the blood count and improved the percentage of haemoglobin. This means in simple language that the quality and quantity of the blood was improved. Acting in this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved themselves definitely to be the specific remedy for anemia (blood impoverishment) and the group of ailments resulting therefrom, which includes: nerve troubles, dyspepsia and digestive troubles, malnutrition, pallor and emaciation, premature age, physical rheumatism, back pains, insomnia, women's ailments, sciatica, lumbago and other weakening ailments. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills also prove an excellent restorative. All chemists can supply you with this genuinely successful blood and nerve tonic.

ANOTHER
ROLE FOR FRED
MARCH"CYNARA" SURE
TO APPEALCOLMAN'S GREAT PERFORMANCE

(By "CELLULOID")

A PART from that box-office success To-Night Is Ours, which has been providing enjoyable light entertainment at the Queen's Theatre, the week-end film offerings in Hongkong have been somewhat below standard.

HONGKONG did not like Baroud, and this is quite understandable. In endeavouring, in his first excursion into the talkies, to accomplish the dual task of playing lead and directing the picture, Rex Ingram seemed to become inextricably confused. The general result was so poor that one found it difficult to find the slightest bit complimentary to his silent productions of The Four Horsemen and The Garden of Allah.

THE management of the King's Theatre wisely took the film off, and to-day, as a prelude to King Vidor's Cynara, we have four showings of Plunder, which, I consider, is the best of the Aldwych cast pictures. In this Tom Walls is offered and accepts an unusual amount of scope to reveal his latent talents as a purveyor of light comedy, and with the rest of the famous cast to assist him, including Ralph Lynn, Winifred Shotter, Mary Brough and Robertson Hare, the fun is laid on thick and fast.

FOR the best all-round entertainment the Central Theatre offering at the present is as good as any. Lucky Devils, which gives vivid impressions of the risks taken by "stunt" men in the studios and on location in order to obtain the realism of the thrills, is well handled by director and actors. William Boyd is excellently cast, and good supporting work is accomplished by Dorothy Wilson, William Gargan and Roscoe Ates. In addition there is showing a sports novelty under the title of "Timing," which includes several interesting studies in golf and tennis. In the latter Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody is photographed in the course of a tournament match. Slow motion camera is brought into use to illustrate her perfect time in ground strokes and volley. This programme has its final showings to-day.

AT the Majestic Theatre, that delightfully sophisticated matrimonial comedy Bachelor's Affairs, with the inimitable Adolphe Menjou in the lead starts a short run to-day. This is one of the best comedy-romances of the year. The dialogue is sparkling, the situations perfect for the suave Man-about-Town Menjou, and the whole thing efficiently handled by director and his assistants. Minna Gombell, Arthur Pierson, Joan March and that old favourite, Herbert Mundin are included in a carefully chosen supporting cast.

AT the Queen's To-Night Is Ours continues. Hollywood seems to be intent on displaying the versatility of Frederic March, and here we have him dispensing passionate love and a little light comedy. The picture is not to be taken seriously from any viewpoint. Any attempt so to do means disillusionment, and it is a bad moment when you begin to find yourself picking holes in your favourite screen star. The whole thing is superficiality personified. It is neatly, sometimes deftly, treated by Stuart Walker the director, and whatever its defects in construction and continuity, the virtuosity of Karl Struss, the cameraman, cannot be denied.

THE picture has two extraordinarily weak moments. The first is the scene in Claudette Colbert's boudoir when she is informed that it is imperative for her to give up ideas of marriage to March as she must return to her throne in one of the Balkan states, and the second, the final scene. This reaches a high pitch of melodrama which leaves an unpleasant recollection.

BEYOND this the film proceeds along fairly normally to its appointed happy ending. The actors on the whole make good work of their scripts and both March and Claudette Colbert add some of those distinctive touches which have put them where they are in the cinema world. When

The Mackey Twins, whose polished dancing will form an additional attraction at the King's Theatre from Sunday next.

Paul Cavanaugh is before the camera one has a suspicion that he is threatening to steal the picture from the featured players. This young man is one of the most polished actors on the screen, and in this picture he rides the part of its artificiality and offers a most pleasant study. Alison Skipworth fades into the picture and fades out just as boisterously. She is not seen at her best during the short time she is before the camera and microphone.

ALTHOUGH strictly speaking this has nothing to do with the cinema, it is, perhaps, not entirely out of place to mention a forthcoming attraction on the stage at the King's Theatre. Starting on Sunday next, September, the Mackey Twins, one of the finest dancing combinations ever to visit the Far East, are appearing on the stage at the King's, in support of the screen programme.

A six month's season at the Canton Theatre in Shanghai have made these two dancers universally popular. Popularly known as the "boys with the educated feet," they boast a repertoire of dances which few others enjoy. Tap, eccentric and all other types of stage dancing is included in their programme and their appearance at the King's for one week will prove one of the best stage attractions Hongkong has enjoyed for a long time.

IF ever a picture enabled one to really know its characters—to see into their hearts and minds—then Cynara is that film. After seeing it (as you must, as it starts a run at the King's Theatre to-morrow) you will feel that you have actually met Jim

Frederic March and Claudette Colbert as they appear together in "To-night Is Ours" at the Queen's Theatre.

Warlock, and you will understand quite clearly how he came to be led into a passing affair with a shop girl while still genuinely in love with his wife. Superficially, Warlock is a cad. Actually, he is a man of honour, who remains faithful to his wife in his own fashion. That is the whole point of the story, and it is perfectly illustrated in the picture.

THE seeds of Warlock's physical unfaithfulness are sown when Clemency, his wife, goes off to Venice (why Venice?), on the anniversary of their marriage, with a silly little sister who is in danger of making a fool of herself over a young man. The pretext, to say the least, is too flimsy. The girl should have been slapped and sent to bed. But it is enough for Clemency, and away she goes to Venice, leaving a disgruntled husband to his own devices. Warlock, returning to bachelor habits, goes out with his friend, John Tring, and an accidental meeting with two girls in a restaurant introduces him, more or less unwillingly, to Doris Lea, who lives in "Tottenham" and works in a shop in Shaftesbury Avenue. They go to the pictures (where they laugh at Charlie Chaplin in A Dog's Life) and he

X-ray-ish quality, deriving a good deal from the actor's own personality, but completely in line with the author's evident ideas. Kay Francis makes one feel the conflicting emotions of the wife, so that at the end, when the semblance of a movie "happy ending" is reached, there is no suspicion that it is just a concession to popular taste. The girl, Doris—a less convincing character—is beautifully played by Phyllis Barry, a newcomer with obvious ability, and there are good, though not outstanding, performances by Henry Stephenson and Viva Tattersall.

THE English atmosphere is decidedly shaky. London is suggested chiefly by fog, lamp-posts, taxi-cabs, and policemen, and there is a near-ludicrous impression of a country swimming gala (redeemed, however, by an extremely clever impromptu speech from Warlock). The dialogue is sound except at odd moments, when it verges on stage rhetoric. Although fundamentally a play, this is an intelligent, thought-provoking and highly entertaining picture. The producer, the players, and, above all, the director, deserve due credit for their achievement.

STABILISATION OF CURRENCIES

The visit of Mr. Montagu Norman to the United States has revived rumours of an impending stabilisation of the dollar and sterling. It is safer to assume that no definite plans are in the air, that the Governor of the Bank of England is seeking a clarification of President Roosevelt's monetary policy, with a view to a possible adjustment of British policy thereto. Stabilisation at some time must, however, be the motive directing such an exchange of views, and it has to be remembered that President Roosevelt, in spite of his rejection of the London formula, in spite of his other cryptic utterances, has not slammed the door leading to stabilisation. At the same time the President's first duty is to see that nothing handicaps the recovery in the United States which is now under way, although moving slowly and not yet clear of the reefs. This is not so selfish as it sounds. President Roosevelt had a problem on his hands which demanded bold and frankly experimental measures. If he succeeds, the benefit will accrue not only to the United States, but also to all those producers in other parts of the world who sell their goods to the United States, and who have been awaiting a revival in American demand. Both his problem and his measures have been appreciated by such expert foreign observers as Mr. John Maynard Keynes, the British economist. But there is no tendency as yet on the part of other countries to embark on anything like the price reflation schemes that Mr. Roosevelt has initiated in the United States. It is not possible for the President in these circumstances to slow down his own ship to the pace of the slowest ship in the squadron. Is there any way out of what seems an impasse? There is. Let stabilisation be put on ice, save for some kind of exchange control, until American recovery has generated its own momentum; let other nations agree to put in practice a programme of price reflation to which they have paid lip service for two years past, a programme which would help to sustain primary prices without too much recourse to national measures; and then let the dollar be stabilised in the only way that it can properly be stabilised, namely, fixed in terms of some world unit of value. Stabilisation must come sooner or later.

NOTES OF THE DAY

KOWLOON WATER SUPPLY

Kowloon registers a complaint against water restrictions on the ground that existing supplies are ample and that water will be running to waste if only an inch of rain falls. The submission is a plausible one if only the situation of the moment is to be taken into consideration, but the experiences of the last month must provide approval of the Government's policy of erring, if at all, on the side of caution. Government had no intention of imposing restrictions in Kowloon until the startling figures showing a consumption of 53,880,000 gallons during the week ended August 21. At that rate, presuming no rain fell in the meantime, Kowloon's reservoirs would be exhausted in about four months. A check had, therefore, to be applied. If the high rate of the corresponding refers to should fall soon, the position will undoubtedly be reconsidered. In the meantime, Kowloon must accept restrictions philosophical.

JAPAN'S BUDGET

After Japan's budgetary experience of last year, more caution was anticipated in the presentation of the coming financial year. In the event, however, Mr. Tashakashi is presented with a more difficult problem than ever. In spite of the urgent need for retrenchment, all the Departments are piling up immense estimates, so that the new expenditure demanded is already more than the total revenue. Perhaps they are only trying to keep pace with the army, instead of sacrificing themselves to the military machine. That seems to be the case with the Metropolitan Police Board, at any rate, which has a special expenditure budget of five millions to present to the Home Office. It wants radio apparatus, aeroplanes, and other modern police equipment. The "growing intensification of emergency sentiment" is mentioned as a reason for the orgy of spending, and the necessity for being armed against the danger of "collective outrages." Dangerous, thoughts were bad enough, but it looks as though patriotic "direct-action" is becoming more expensive.

YOUTH'S CHALLENGE

The International Congress of Women in Chicago heard much sane counsel and many ringing and provocative challenges. Most of the speeches came naturally from representative women in various fields of social endeavour, many of them veteran workers. But the delegates were wise. The voice of youth too, must be heard, they agreed, and so they sat and listened while thirteen college girls, three young women in industry, and one youthful editor tried to express something of their philosophy of life and their views of our social ills. It has been said that, in the world to-day, it is youth that is suffering most severely from the social revolution through which we are passing. There is evidence to support this point of view. When one of these young speakers said, "Youth must be brought out of the slack, dull, individualistic reactions which the depression has brought about in us and learn the zest of doing something," she reached to the heart of the problem to-day. To youth especially belong vigour, zeal, enthusiasm, and the present social maladjustment would do its utmost to rob them of their birthright.

Another young speaker, referring to the enthusiasm of her college days for world affairs, pleaded, "You must help us to keep our heads above water until we see again that vision of internationalism." But in the ugly head of adversity a precious jewel is often hidden, and it may be that both these statements give some inkling of the doubly precious jewel that is being offered the youth of to-day. For one speaker, it appears, has learned to classify "individualistic" with "slack" and "dull," and the other has seen the "vision of internationalism." Are not these immeasurably valuable lessons? The age of individualism, it is clear, is passing, and it is more than possible that clear-eyed youth is already fast mastering the lesson so difficult for many of the older generation, that not selfish acquisition, but cooperation, is to be the watchword of the new age. Youth's challenge to the world is a challenge to the world to learn the lesson of cooperation.

DIALOGUE AND "STAR" SYSTEM THE CURSE OF THE CINEMA

WHY PRESENT-DAY FILMS ARE SO DEPLORABLE

Five years ago the cinema world was rudely awakened from its peaceful pursuits of producing films which were getting appreciably nearer the qualities of true cinema by the sobbing monologue of a popular American variety artist who plaintively appealed to a boy of tender years to climb up on his knee and promise not to stray when he became of age. This was known as the birth of the dialogue film. It was a blind, almost desperate, experiment by Warner Brothers, the American producing company. It proved an experiment which, commercially speaking, far exceeded their wildest dreams (that is if they had any). The talking film took four continents by storm, ruined hundreds of actors, caused the debacle of a cinema built up to a state nearing perfection by years of ceaseless endeavour by some of the world's finest creative minds, and left the industry in a state of "confusion worse confounded."

DIALOGUE AND THE STAR SYSTEM.

The lessons of the last five years, if they are at all to be taken seriously, tell us in unqualified tones at least two vital things; that until dialogue is eliminated from films, and American and English producing companies forsake the "star" system, the cinema, in all its beauty, artistry and drama, as expressed a decade ago by Eisenstein, Pudovkin, Von Stroheim, Erich Pommer, Pabst and others can never again be realised.

To Hollywood the cinema world owes a lot. Chief among its debts can be numbered the prostitution, by commercialisation, of the real qualities of the cinema. We owe it to America that the resources of the studio are now greater than ever before in the history of the industry; we also owe it to America that those resources are abused and misused. Hollywood, and in its turn Elstree, and quite a number of other European producing concerns with the box-office complex, have refused to recognise the art of the cinema; have stimulated a public taste for sex films and called it "public demand"; and have fruitlessly tried to adapt the peculiar demands of the sound-film to the real properties of the cinema, all the time knowing, but refusing to recognise, that those various requirements are totally incompatible.

The position to-day is that the public have actually become educated into accepting as good cinema some of the worst, and most inartistic films ever produced.

VIRTUOSITY FOR ARTISTRY.

In their persistent exploitation of the Star system, their commercially-clouded perspective of the film, its properties and its attractions, and their anxiety to obtain technical perfection, the American and English productions are for the most part devoid of the essential qualities of the silver screen. As Paul Rotha has pointed out, the majority of American productions are works of virtuosity rather than artistry.

The position we have to face to-day is that the cinema, rather than being progressive, is retrogressive. The camera and its mobility is retarded by having to conform with sound-recording requirements. The use of the close-up, the scope and properties of which were first exploited by D.W. Griffiths, are constantly being misused, being concentrated on the facial expressions of the actors instead of used, in conjunction with lighting effects, on inanimate objects, to heighten dramatic effect. Rhythm obtained by cutting and editing the film frames, is persistently ruined by the adaptation of dialogue which demands a different treatment. The sophisticated, but superficial, studio architecture of Hollywood and Elstree invariably bear no relation to the theme or dramatic content of the scene or sequence. Poor scenario writing, the inability of the director to create the proper atmosphere, inferior cutting, and careless editing, often contribute to a montage which fails entirely to stimulate in the minds of the audience the reactions sought by the theme.

EFFICIENCY INSUFFICIENT.

Efficiency is the keynote of Hollywood. It has become the slogan of Elstree. But efficiency in itself is not true cinema. A child who plays a Beethoven sonata without a mistake may be described as efficient, but nobody would pretend to compare it with a rendering of the same piece by Paderewski. The one is just mechanical virtuosity; the other the work of a creative mind, alive to the moods of the composition and sufficiently artistic to give expression to those moods.

Fundamentally the cinema to-day is suffering from an exaggerated idea of the importance of acting material, known as "Stars," and the continuance of the sound dialogue which is diametrically opposed to the requirements of cinematic essentials.

America and England, having accepted the dialogue as something which has come to stay, is making no effort to improve their films cinematically. In technical production Hollywood still leads the world, with Elstree making rapid improvements. But they stop here, and it is still left to the Russian producers and in a lesser degree to the Germans and French (directors such as Pabst and Rene Clair) to attempt to overcome the disabilities of a five year-old "fad," with experiments in true cinema. Thus we have Pudovkin, now among the world's finest directors, working out a new theory, in photography allied with lighting effects and cutting, which, he claims, will add much to the dramatic expression of the cinema.

REAL DRAMATIC EXPRESSION.

This conveys nothing to the general public. There is no reason. (Continued on Next Column.)

The Very Idea!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

By Edward Kelly. His-story

EVER since we discovered that we had nothing but water in the brain to write up for to-day's column we have been studying history.

Pete gave us the idea when he called on us yesterday afternoon. Pete had the hiccoughs. History repeats itself.

History is a wonderful thing. Do you know, for instance, that millions of years ago, Love ran wild on this spinning globe of ours.

In those days men were slimy creatures resembling a louse, or your wife's description of yourself. The earliest men and women, who had by now reached the jelly-fish stage in life, used to meet under a stone.

This is why we call their era the Stone Age.

For our subsequent data we have read the excellent publication called Vet to Zym, published by the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

We now know that the Oyster Age came right after the original life and right before the soup.

The Oyster was the first animal born with Sex Appeal. The male oyster, with his instinctive knowledge of feminine nature, knew that if you wanted to get anywhere with a lady oyster, you'd have to give her birthday presents. So he hit upon the idea of making pearls.

This was not the only ingenious thing the Oyster ever did, for even to-day Oysters make excellent stews, cocktails, and patties.

But Oysters were different in the olden days. The Oyster of to-day is not the Oyster of fifteen million years ago—unless by any chance you go into a restaurant and order some. Then they only taste the same.

The early oyster was known as the Oysterolithic Man. Their greatest enemies were the Salmon, which were hostile and very cunning.

Salmon used to hide in tin, and came out only on Saturday's, when it was the boy's day off, and visitors popped in unexpectedly for dinner.

Generally the Salmon could always be had with raw onions and beer.

Speaking of beer, we think we have spent enough time already on history. The opening of the new brewery in Hongkong is a new age. It is known as the New Be-era.

BROTHERLY LOVE

Pete had been calling every night in spite of the warnings from his lady love about her irate father. This particular evening they had been cuddled together before the fireplace planning their next move. Only the clock, announcing that the witching hour had been reached, broke the silence. Then, without warning, a thump and a creak were heard, and the room was flooded with light. There, as big as fate, stood the old man, glowering and puffing at the terrified caller. "Who in h— are you?" he belted. Pete gulped, turned pale, and appeared on the verge of fainting. But the colour returned to his face suddenly, and he roared. "I'm her brother," he said simply.

Stop us if you've heard this one before.

SHE WAS ONLY—

We shot a man to-day. And we'll tell you why. He came up to us and said: "She is only an optician's daughter." We pulled the trigger. Then, with a last gasp, he called out to us from where he lay, "But just give her a couple of glasses and she'll make a spectacle of herself."

son why it should. The public is not concerned with cause, but with effect. Its interest should be exclusively with film producers. Dramatic expression is an essential of the cinema, and the more artistic that form of expression the nearer does it get to being a pure cinematic quality.

Dramatic expression is not, as Hollywood and Elstree try to lead us to believe, best given through dialogue and/or the histrionic abilities of sex appeal of actors. A more subtle treatment is necessary. Emphasis is gained by suggestion, not by blatant realism. The camera, recognized as the most subtle and most powerful

SPECTACULAR BLAZE
IN CHAPELReported to Have Been Begun By Explosion

Shanghai, Aug. 20.
A spectacular blaze, reported to have been started by an explosion, caused extensive damage to a Japanese house in the area behind Hongkew Park late last night. The flames could be seen from a long way around and a great crowd was attracted to the spot. One male Japanese was injured.

The house is a two-storey foreign style building in Wanglo Road, on the north side of the railway line and just in Chinese territory. A foreigner gave the alarm by telephone at 11.30 p.m. and three engines from the Hongkew fire station hurried to the scene. The Chapel brigade also attended.

When the firemen arrived the flames, which were reported to have followed a sharp explosion, were blazing fiercely, but after a strenuous half-hour battle were brought under control. The firemen continued to work and the fire was completely extinguished by about 1 a.m.

The upper floor of the house and the roof were very badly damaged.

At 11.55 p.m. an emergency ambulance left the Hongkew fire station and removed from the burning house a Japanese man with an injured ear, the cause of which was not known. He was taken to the Foo Ming (Japanese) Hospital, North Szechuen Road extension.

The firemen were hampered in their work at first by a large crowd of onlookers; but with the help of the police these were moved from the vital places.

CHARHAR REVOLT

GENERALS REFUSE TO JOIN NANKING

Peking, Aug. 28.
Telegrams from Kalgan indicate that both Generals Fang Chen-wu and Chi Hung-chang have failed to come to terms with General Sung Chieh-yuan, and are joining hands with Liu Kwei-tang.

A Chinese telegram from Kalgan states that a subordinate of Chang Hai-peng has occupied Kuyuan, which caused Chi Hung-chang's troops to fall back on Baohung, while from the other side General Sung Chieh-yuan has sent troops to round up both Fang Chen-wu and Chi Hung-chang. Thus, between the Chinese and Manchukuo lines, they may be dispersed and disarmed.—Reuter.

Nanking Post.

SERVED AS CITIZEN.

Peking, Aug. 28.
Sun Liang-chen, an ally of General Feng Yu-hsiang in his recent "Chorhar" adventure, arrived in this morning and is staying here for a few days before proceeding to Tientsin, where he will retire.

Interviewed, General Sun said he had joined General Feng in order to "do his bit as a citizen of China," but he now wanted to retire into private life. He did not desire any post from the Government, he added.—Reuter.

Europe is in the grip of another heat wave. There were three heat waves in the West in July and the first of these has been experienced.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 2,120,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: The market generally was dull and irregular, with the close due to a dip in the U.S. dollar and steadier commodities. It opened weak on account of the U.S. dollar being strong because of short covering abroad in the absence of definite inflation measures and also on account of the approaching Roosevelt-Montagu Norman conference. Traders believed that the latter includes stabilization plans but indications, however, are that the Administration will make no commitments thereon. Our New York Office cable (this morning) Stocks: The market was quiet and strength characterized an uneventful session with rails and oils displaying the greatest firmness. Wheat—Weakness in sterling discouraged new buyers. Good rains in the Southwest United States. The winter wheat market is drifting awaiting new developments. Cotton: After the opening hedge selling subsided and other offerings were absorbed by trade buying on a very small market. Heavy pressure for inflation is reported but there is no indication yet of a change in the Government's policy. Our New York Office cable (last night) Stocks: Any irregularity this week might be used to increase speculative positions in anticipation of further advances after Labour Day holiday. Wheat: Essential details are not yet available but in general it is a first step toward world curtailment of production and adjustment of supply to demand and higher prices. Cotton: The market lower on hedge offerings, trade taking on scale down. Private reports show increase of boll weevil but little damage yet.

WIFE'S ALLEGED DEBTS TO LOCAL HOTEL

Mr. A. Wheeler, of Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son, Ltd., Queen's Building, was sued at the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Anna Bella Osherry, trading as the Palace Hotel, Kowloon, to recover expenses of board, lodging and refreshments amounting to $314.68 alleged to have been incurred by defendant's wife.

Alternatively plaintiff claimed $314.68 for necessities supplied to defendant's wife who was held out to be his agent.

The particulars stated that the amounts were incurred as follows:—October $108.00, November $130.00, December $56.00, January $24.16.

Mr. F. H. Losby, of Messrs. Russ and Co., appeared for defendant, and Mr. R. H. Cole, of Messrs. Geo. K. Hall Brutton and Co., represented plaintiff.

Following a legal argument as to the form of the statement of claim, Mr. Cole opened the case. He said that in October of last year Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler came to the Palace Hotel and engaged a room for defendant's wife. Mr. Goldenberg the licensee, was also the brother of plaintiff and all four parties had known each other for a number of years.

Husband's Visits.

Room 19 was engaged for Mrs. Wheeler at the rate of $4 a day including board. Mrs. Wheeler moved into the room on October 8; subsequently moving into a smaller room. While she was at the Hotel her husband frequently visited her and sometimes brought the children with him. By this conduct, he submitted, the husband held out his wife as being authorised to pledge his credit for the room. Demands were made to the wife and she always said the husband would pay. The bills were sent to him but remained unpaid.

If separation was to be the defence, this was an unusual case because the separation was unusual. There was no legal separation at all as far as he could understand, added Mr. Cole.

Mr. Losby objected to his client's family affairs being broached.

Plaintiff's Evidence.

Mrs. Osherry gave evidence bearing out her solicitor's statements. Cross-examined witness said she did not know "exactly" whether defendant and his wife were separated, but she would not have given Mrs. Wheeler credit had she not been accompanied by her husband, to whom plaintiff looked for payment. She knew Mrs. Wheeler was earning $50 a month but she could not pay her way on that. Defendant had stayed at the hotel for a few days three years ago. The wife had the custody of the children on that occasion.

Mr. Goldenberg gave evidence, and denied that he was mistaken in stating that Mrs. Wheeler was accompanied by her husband when the room was booked.

The case was adjourned to Friday, September 8.

PEKING MURDER MYSTERY

CHINESE WOMAN FOUND

There has been a succession of murder outrages in Peking during the last few days.

While the trunk murder mystery at Shanghai behind the Peihai Park has not yet been solved by local detectives, another case has occurred to baffle local police officers.

In the kaoliang field of a Chinese farmer at Kuangtsun, about seven miles from Peking, the body of a fashionably-dressed Chinese woman, about 24 years old, has been discovered. At the inquest held by local court officials it was found that the body had three bullet wounds. The face, however, was disfigured beyond recognition. The woman had bob-bed hair.

According to a farmer who testified at the inquest the woman drove up in a motor car with a male friend on Saturday afternoon to the village. The party alighted and were soon seen entering the kaoliang field. Later revolver shots were heard, followed by the WORLD RECOVERY

BACK TO PROSPERITY VIA SILVER

London, Aug. 24.
A vigorous controversy has been caused in Great Britain by the declarations of Mr. Bankwitz during the last International Congress to the effect that the Occident was doomed to be ousted with the least delay from all markets by the Orient.

Among many pessimistic and vague comments it is interesting to note the simple and explicit solution recommended by Mr.
Franco Hardeck, one-time managing director of the China Press, of Shanghai, in an open letter to the Morning Post:

After having recalled the role played by silver from times immemorial in the history of Far Eastern currencies, the writer deplores the policy revealing lack of understanding followed in this regard by British authorities.

ANNIHILATION.

"In fact," writes Mr. Hardeck,
"we have annihilated the purchasing power of a half of the world's population. The arrogant and foolish refusal to recognize silver currencies, perfectly sound in Asia, has as its sequel the imposition on the overseas trade of Great Britain of an embargo by far more dangerous than that which was attempted to be maintained by the submarines of our enemies during the war: Being unable to purchase British goods, the Orient manufactures industrial products to satisfy its home markets and exports its surplus, which is daily increasing."

Mr. Soong's Views.

As the first measure to put an end to this state of things, Mr.
Hardeck suggests that the Indian Treasury be forbidden to sell silver at less than 2/6 an ounce.
He affirms that this simple measure would decrease by a half

SHANGHAI-PEKING RLY. SERVICE

CANNOT BE STARTED UNTIL OCTOBER

Peking, Aug. 24.
Contrary to a report appearing in the Shanghai press, the through train service between Shanghai and Peking will not be started until October 10, when the Nanking ferry comes into operation.

Also, as from September 1, south-bound trains will take 40 hours and 45 minutes, as against the present 47 1/2 hours while north-bound trains will take 43 hours and 48 minutes as against the present time, 49 hours and nine minutes.

The 20 new coaches stated in the Shanghai report to have been purchased in England some time ago are all third-class coaches.

A 36-hour service between Shanghai and Peking and vice versa has not been run since 1924 and, it is understood, cannot be run at present as the track is not in a condition to carry trains at the high speed necessary to maintain such a schedule.

Clip-On Watch Keeps the Minutes in Sight

"Clocking" smart women on their daily round of social or business engagements this summer, a clip-on watch which fastens onto their purses, belts or linen coat lapel is something brand new and very handsome. The watch is made of real gold, in a modernistic design that is highly ornamental. It has little touches of enamel, green in this instance, and is worn on the newest summer purse of corded beige fabric.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Superfluous Hair-Raising Advice

By Alicia Hart.

One of the most frequent questions asked a beauty editor is what to do about superfluous hair. It is true that superfluous hair can be a constant source of annoyance.

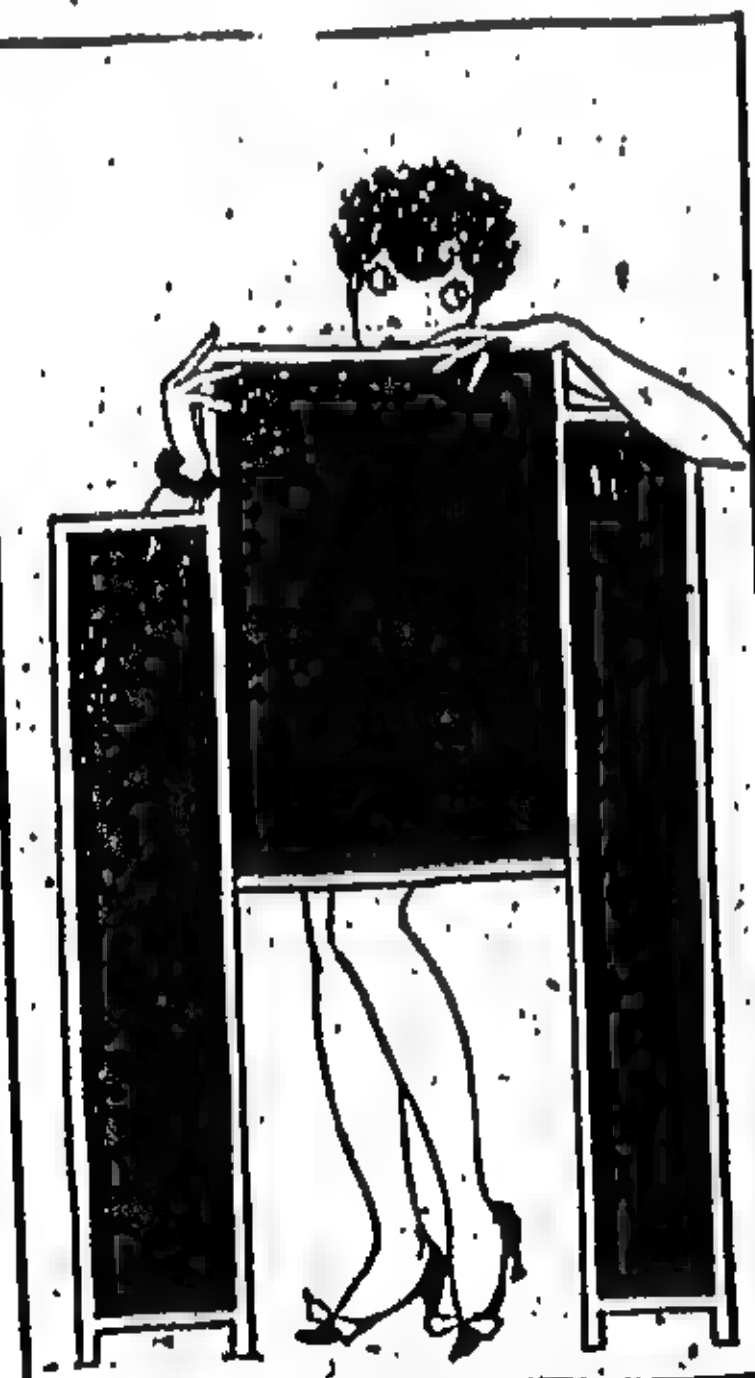

Hair under the arms can be removed without danger with a razor. Simply shave it all off as often as you think it necessary. If your skin feels irritated use a little cold cream or perhaps a mild antiseptic. Do not use a deodorant directly after shaving under your arms.

Wax is probably the most effective method of removing superfluous hair from the arms and legs. Most beauty product manufacturers have a wax made especially for this purpose. You melt it a little, smooth it on over your arms and legs and give the wax a few minutes time to allow it to harden. When it seems to be "set," loosen a couple of the edges so you can get a firm grip and then pull it all off as you remove adhesive tape. The hair pulls off with the wax. The object is to use wax until the roots become so weakened that they will not grow any more.

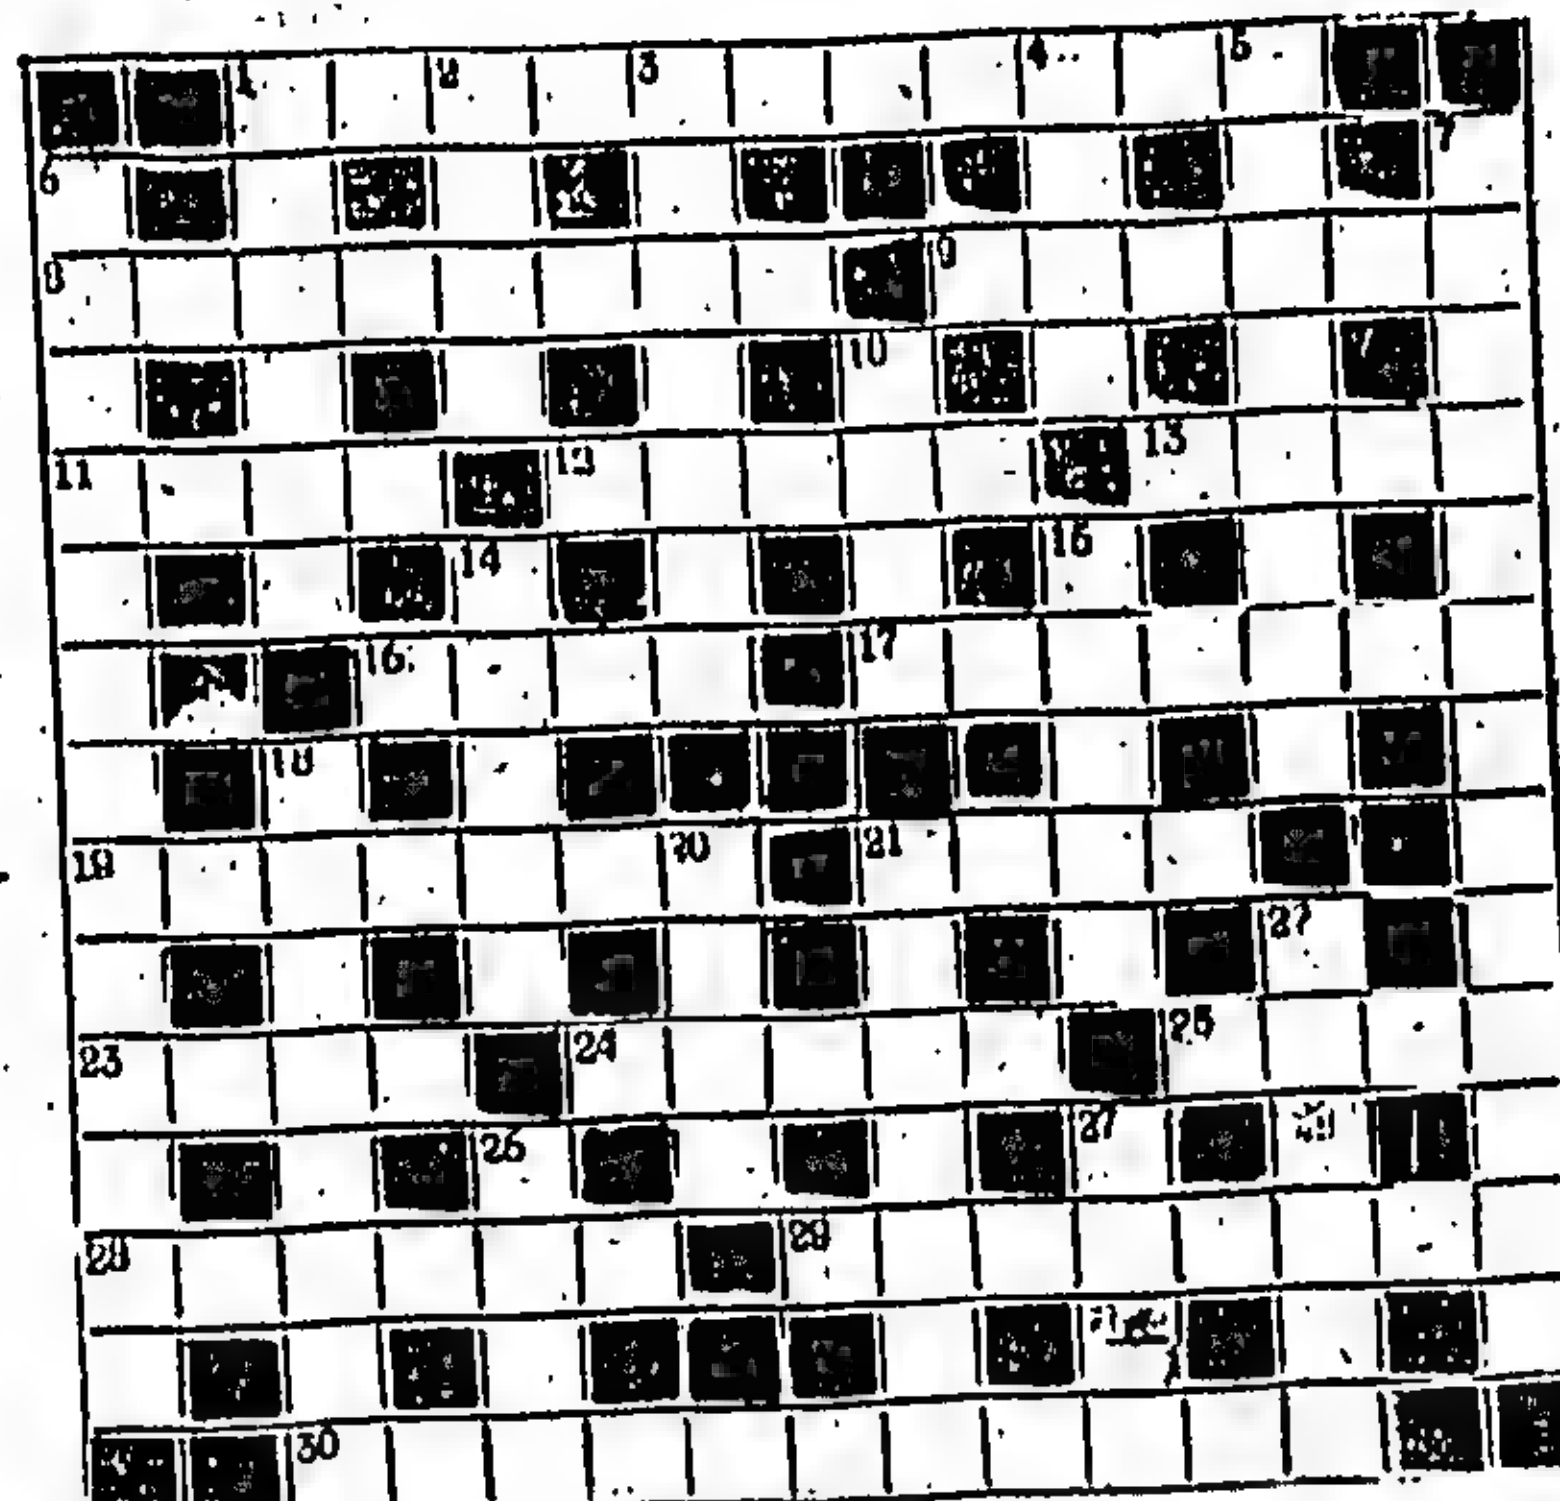

Superfluous hair on the face can be removed by an electric needle. But you have to find a reliable skin specialist and have it done by him. Don't go to an amateur!

Bleaching is an excellent means of making the superfluous hair on your face, arms and legs so light in colour it doesn't show.

There are many adequate bleaching creams on the market to-day and it may be well worth your while to invest in one. Peroxide is a well-known bleaching agent. Always use cream after the peroxide has dried and been washed off.

For a girl to reveal her figure, may not always be good form.

SALESMAN SAM

Or Longer, Maybe!

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

EVE DAYLESS, pretty assistant to EARLY BARNES, advertising manager of Dixie's department store, secretly marries DICK REECE, a construction engineer. Dick wants Eve to give up working but she refuses. The same day Eve learns that she is to go to New York for the store and must leave that night. Dick takes her to the station but throughout the week in New York she has no word from him. The days there are busy. She meets THERON REECE who is much attracted by her and she visits IRENE PRENTISS, a former schoolmate who is playing the stock market and advises Eve to do the same. On her return to Lake City Dick takes Eve to the fashionable Hotel Miramar where he has engaged a suite. At the office MARYA VIAD, fashion artist, and ARLENE BRITIL, stenographer, are cast to him of Eve's lip. There is a new copy writer, MUNA ALLEN, who threatens to become a trouble-maker.

CHAPTER VII

Eve and Dick stayed at the Hotel Miramar for a week. They usually dined in the marine dining room overlooking the lake. Eve enjoyed the formality of their surroundings and each evening wore a different costume. She had a flair for clothes and was aware that, though many of the women about her were gowning more expensively, few wore smarter costume. And because she was happy her eyes glowed and smiles curved her lips. When she looked at Dick, correct in his severe evening clothes, she was proud of him. "Dick," she began enthusiastically the fourth night of their stay at the Miramar, "I've an idea!" "You're full of ideas," teased Dick. "What is it now?" "Let's always dress for dinner. There's no reason why people who have fortunes should monopolize

"M-m," answered Dick. "Then we'll do it always! Oh, Dick, I'm so glad you see things as I do. You're a perfect dear to agree with me all the time. I'd hate to have just an ordinary husband. You will let me plan everything the way I want it, won't you, dear?"

"M-m," answered Dick. After dinner he suggested going out to watch the skating. They put on warm wraps and trudged through the snow over the deserted bridge path to the lake.

"Reminds me of the lake at home," said Dick. "I'd like to be out on the ice now. Haven't skated for 10 years. My old skates got too short and I never seemed to have money to buy new ones."

"Oh, Dick," Eve interrupted him, "I've just had a grand idea for the lead for my column tomorrow! I can scarcely wait to write it. See the red and white outfit that girl is wearing? It gave me the idea. Here she comes now. Why, as I live and breathe, it's Gladys Rippel! Dick, let's leave. If we want to keep our marriage a secret we can't afford to be meeting people we know."

Eve turned back toward the hotel and Dick followed, reluctantly. He would have enjoyed skating in the moonlight on the frozen edge of the lake.

He took Eve's arm to keep her from slipping on the icy walk. "Eve, sweetheart," he said, "I don't like keeping our marriage a secret. As far as I'm concerned

there are few to whom it matters, but you, dear, have so many friends in the city that it is bound to cause complications."

"I'm thinking of my position," she said. "We'll announce it later. With this Dick had to be content."

Each morning he drove to "the job" before 7:30. Eve, in her smart black business clothes, boarded an eight o'clock trolley. She never glanced at the morning Times until she reached the older district of the city where the street were lined with stores and office buildings. Instead she looked at the beautiful homes along the boulevard over which she rode. Eve wondered about the people who lived in those houses and was sure she could never be contented until she had such a home. The apartment at the hotel would do, however, she told herself, until she and Dick could afford a home like one of those.

Her promotion at the office had not brought with it the satisfaction Eve had expected. She had not realized how much Alice Marshall had smoothed her way and made things easy for her.

Eve was particularly annoyed by Barnes' habitual tardiness in deciding how much space was to be devoted to each advertisement. This delay often made it necessary for her to prepare her copy at a speed making careful work impossible. Inevitably there came a day when she was obliged to remain an hour over time.

True, Barnes and Arlene were also detained, but that did not lessen Eve's resentment. She knew that if Barnes had been prompt the work easily could have been completed by 5:30, the store's closing hour.

Eve was anxious not to give Dick any cause to resent her work. She suspected that secretly he cherished an ideal of a home-keeping wife who would be watching for him at the window when he came each evening. Dick's work kept him outdoors much of the time and he always arrived with a healthy appetite. Eve seldom was ready for dinner before seven. This evening it was nearly eight, but Dick did not complain.

Saturday night came and the hotel held its weekly dinner dance. Eve wore the gown of pale gold lace that she had worn on her visit to the night club in New York with Theron Reece.

As she turned from the mirror she called to Dick. "I'm so happy, dear! I think this is the most adorable place to live. And I love dressing for dinner."

"It would be nice if we could stay on here," Dick agreed. "But I suppose since to-morrow is Sunday we can drive around and try to locate a place to settle in."

Something froze in Eve. She asked, ever so quietly, what Dick's plans were.

"We'll have to find a place within my income," he told her. "But we have two incomes!"

"We're not counting on anything you may earn," Dick announced with finality. "Your money is yours to do with as you please. If I were you I'd bank that money. You may do as you like, however. I'll never question you about it. But I am going to support our homes on my income and I will endeavor to add to our savings each payday."

Eve was not in the most pleasant frame of mind as they descended to the dining room. She had been enjoying the luxury of the past week and saw no reason why she and Dick should not combine their incomes and continue this mode of living which, she felt, would leave them free from the petty cares of the average young married couple.

"Dick," she began after the waiter took their order, "I don't want to argue but it seems only fair to remind you that we agreed marriage is a fifty-fifty proposition. So I want to pay my share."

"Successful marriage is always a fifty-fifty proposition," Dick agreed. "But that doesn't necessarily apply to finances the way you mean. I should say it is important for each always to meet the other half way. What I mean is, turn for turn and fair play."

Eve recalled Dick's noncommittal, "M-m," each time she had thought she had scored a victory. She took her cue and said, "Let's have a marriage free from quarrels, too, Dick. Each of us will always think of the other's side of the question, won't we?"

"That's the only kind of a marriage I will have," he answered with emphasis.

Eve was determined to enjoy the present and let the future take care of itself. No need to hurry in locating another apartment. She would meet that unpleasant contingency when it arrived.

So she smiled brightly and said, "In the meantime on with the dance."

They danced between courses. It was until after they had finished dinner that Eve saw Theron Reece.

He had just entered the dining room with a vivacious looking girl. The couple lost no time in getting on the dance floor. Reece's glances swept the restaurant and he saw Eve at once. She looked away but the crowd was not large and before the dance was concluded she was forced to return Reece's nod of recognition. Evidently he was determined to continue their acquaintance. A shadow of apprehension clouded Eve's sky. She hoped Reece had not noticed her wedding ring.

"Let's go now, Dick," she said when they returned to their table. He agreed without asking any questions.

But Reece was not to be disposed of so readily. He approached, bowing, and said, "Good evening, Miss Dayless."

Eve felt a sudden panic but managed to introduce the men without disclosing the fact that Dick was her husband. Before Reece could begin conversation she arose for another dance with Dick.

After all, she reasoned, it was not strange that Reece should be there. Much business was conducted between Lake City and Cincinnati and Reece, a salesman, lived in the latter place. The marine dining room of the Hotel Miramar was an attractive restaurant and it was natural for him to dine there. But Eve felt she wanted to leave the Miramar before her joy was spoiled.

So she said to Dick, "I think, darling, it might be fun to look for an apartment to-morrow. We will get up early and not lose any time."

She could not resist one guarded glance toward Reece's table as Dick guided her toward the door. There was something sinister in Reece's dark eyes as his glance met and locked with hers.

HERE ARE THE FACTS

FOR PARTNERSHIPS

1.—Upon the death of one partner it is legally required that the partnership be dissolved immediately to settle the estate. Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to enable the surviving partner to purchase the deceased's interest without drawing upon invested capital, and without being forced to liquidate assets at what might well be an unfavorable moment.

2.—It provides the cash to guarantee that the deceased partner's heirs will receive full value of his interest in the partnership.

3.—The annual deposits serve to create a sinking fund, which can be used to retire a partner, or is available at any time as a sudden cash reserve to meet any emergency.

FOR COMPANIES

Business Insurance provides the immediate cash to indemnify a concern for the loss of an employee or skilled advisor whose ability is of great importance to the success of the firm.

4.—It provides a cash fund for retirement.

5.—It enhances credit, and is often used as collateral security.

6.—It provides a means of retiring indebtedness through a sinking fund process. Its full face value is payable immediately in cash in the event of the non-survival of the insured, and can be arranged to mature at its full value after a period of years of accumulation.

7.—The cash value of the policy constitutes a hidden reserve, which is available in times of financial emergency.

WORLD CRISIS
A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer, and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme. The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—

SALE OF A CHILD

A MAN AND WOMAN SENT TO PRISON

Convicted on a charge of having taken part in a transaction for the sale of a male child, Wong Kwan-ling (11), a man named Pan Sang, an earth cooler, and Loung Ho, 76, widow, were sentenced to twelve months and six months imprisonment respectively, by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

Ma Fung-wan, a boatman, another defendant in the case, was discharged on the police withdrawing the case against him, and his evidence was used against the other defendants. Chan Yi, described as a kept woman, was discharged after evidence.

At the previous hearing of the case, Chiu Chau-ming, an unemployed man, was convicted of kidnapping the boy, and sentenced to twelve months' hard labour. The offence was committed at 254, Tai Nam Street.

Mr. Hin-shing Lo appeared for Ma Fung-wan, the defendant against whom the police withdrew the charge, and Sub-Inspector Elston prosecuted.

Ma Fung-wan said that the boy was brought to him at the Tak Yee tea shop, Sankung, by the second defendant, who claimed he was her grandson. On the previous day, August 4 he was approached by a casual friend of his, Yau Fat, who asked him whether he wanted a son. He met the first and second defendants at Yau Fat's house, and the following day the second defendant brought the boy to him. He paid $104 for the boy, but did not know who actually received the money.

Defendants Plead.

The first defendant said that Yau Fat asked him to take the child over to the purchaser.

The second defendant admitted taking the boy to Yau Fat's place, and that he had been sold.

The third defendant said she knew nothing about the matter.

Another witness, Ho Sin, the principal tenant of No. 254, Tai Nam Street, said that the first defendant and his wife the third defendant lived on the first floor. The old woman, the second defendant, came on August 3 bringing the boy with her, and gave him in charge of the first defendant, who took him away that very night. The second defendant stayed over the night, and left the following morning, to return again on August 5, leaving on August 6. She came again on August 10 to look for the first defendant, and was arrested the following morning.

Remarking that there was no evidence against the third defendant, except that she was living with the first accused, Mr. Wynne-Jones discharged her.

Addressing the first and second defendants, he said that they had pleaded guilty to the second charge in their statements, and he was going to convict them. Sentence was passed as stated above.

THE UNIVERSAL TONIC
For Blood & Nerves.

In seventy two countries and under the most varied climatic conditions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills still maintain the reputation they achieved fifty years ago. Over all this long period sick people have continued to find new health and strength and relief from sickness in the blood-creating, nerve-strengthening properties of this supremely successful remedy.

There have been many emulators of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills; but the formula of this blood and nerve tonic was the great achievement of a distinguished medical practitioner and since its discovery none of its imitators has succeeded in producing anything which so rapidly re-habilitates the blood stream. During the past half century many tests have been made upon the formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. And recently very searching group tests were conducted by a highly qualified physician to gauge the exact effect of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the bloodstream of anemic cases.

The results of these tests demonstrated in a degree which astonished the physician that the formula increased the blood count and improved the percentage of haemoglobin. This means in simple language that the quality and quantity of the blood was improved.

Acting in this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved themselves definitely to be the specific remedy for anaemia (blood impoverishment) and the group of ailments resulting therefrom, which includes: nerve troubles, dyspepsia and digestive troubles, malnutrition, pallor and emaciation, premature age, physical weakness, back pains, insomnia, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, women's ailments. After malaria and other weakening ailments Dr. Williams' Pink Pills also prove an excellent restorative. All chemists can supply you with this genuinely successful blood and nerve tonic.

YOUNGS MURDER IN SHANGHAI

STABBING SCENE DESCRIBED

EYE-WITNESS STORIES

Eye-witness descriptions of the stabbing of a British ship's officer were given in H. M. Police Court on Thursday, when the Registrar (Mr. C. H. Haines), resumed the hearing of the case against Katherine Hadley (36), a widow of Russian birth formerly living at House 17, Lane 166 Muirhead Road, and charged with the murder of Walter Clifford Youngs of the same address on the night of August 16.

Young foreign women comprised the majority of those who crowded the limited public space in the courtroom when the proceedings opened. The accused woman, accompanied from Amoy Road Gaol by a woman attendant, wore a pink spotted dress and cream straw hat with brown band. She sat motionless in the dock, only raising herself to shake her head decisively when asked whether she had any questions to put to witnesses. Mr. John McNeill again appeared for the prosecution.

The first witness was Detective-Sergeant H. Leonard Jones, attached to the finger-print bureau of the Municipal Police. He stated that on August 17 he received instructions to proceed to House 17, Lane 166 Muirhead Road where he superintended the taking of photographs. The series of pictures, identified by witness and shown to the accused, included an exterior view from the first floor verandah of House 17, Lane 178 Muirhead Road, and also photographs of the interior of the dining room and the adjoining bedroom.

Seen From Verandah.

Evidence was next given by Edna Rivkin, a barber living at House 17, Lane 178 Muirhead Road. Speaking through an interpreter, he told the Court that on the evening of August 16 he and his wife were sitting on the first floor verandah of the house opposite, and only the further room was illuminated. Sitting at a table in the dining room he saw two people, a man facing their verandah and a woman opposite him. They were talking. Witness noticed that the woman had in her hand a knife with which she was breaking the crockery on the table.

He and his wife called Mr. Koresky, a tenant of their house, to come and see what was going on, continued witness. Mr. Koresky came upstairs, they advised him to call the police, and he went away.

"Again looked at the room, and I saw the woman stab the man with the knife," said Mr. Rivkin. "She was sitting at the table, and just before stabbing him she rose a little in her chair. She stabbed him in the upper part of the body, and he fell down from his chair at once. As I was facing him, he fell to our right side. The woman rested her head on the table and remained in that position about a minute. Then she raised her head, looked around, got up from the chair, and walked about the room for some time. Then she went into the dark room and stayed for some time between the window and the wall. I could only see that she was moving. About two minutes later I heard the police arrive, and went downstairs. From the verandah I could see the man's face. I had seen him on several occasions in the street. I could not recognise the woman. Throughout the time I was watching I saw no other person in the room."

In reply to the Registrar, the witness explained that the woman was sitting to his (witness's) right-hand side of the man.

Woman Breaking Crockery.

A similar account of the scene was furnished by Rosa Rivkin, wife of the previous witness. While she was on the verandah with her husband, she said, her attention was attracted to the house by the fact that the woman was breaking crockery with the knife, which she held by the handle. The woman was "sometimes sitting, sometimes standing." The man was simply sitting at the table, resting his head on his hand. Witness could not see whether he had anything in either of his hands. It was a round table, and the man was on their left-hand side, with the woman opposite, to their right, with her left side towards them. It was about 9.40 or 9.45 p.m. when witness noticed the woman breaking crockery.

Declaring that she also saw the woman stab the man, Mrs. Rivkin demonstrated to the Court how she accused held the knife, the blade of which she estimated as

GREAT SECRECY IN TOKYO

Reported Understanding with China

CO-OPERATION HOPED FOR

Tokyo, Aug. 28. Despite the interest of Japanese business-men and those who trade with China, the Foreign Ministry maintains the utmost secrecy in connection with the conversations between Mr. Akira Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, and Mr. Huang Fu which took place in Shanghai on August 20.

It is reported that Mr. Ariyoshi and Mr. Huang reached a satisfactory understanding with regard to certain Sino-Japanese questions during their interview. According to a spokesman of the Foreign Office, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Mr. Wang Ching-wei and Mr. Huang Fu reached an agreement concerning China's future policy toward Japan and North China at the recent conference at Kuling.

The spokesman said that Japan hopes that both Chinese and Japanese nationals understand the necessity of mutual co-operation for the maintenance of Far Eastern peace. Japan will oppose the reported Chinese plan to conduct an anti-Japanese campaign with foreign capital. In the meantime, Japan will not hesitate to render assistance to those who try to bring about complete co-operation between Japan and China in view of the present Far Eastern situation.

He stated that some Chinese politicians recently showed their desire to adopt a friendly policy toward Japan, but Japan's policy toward China is entirely dependent upon the attitude of China.

TRICK TO STEAL ELECTRIC FAN

HOUSEHOLDERS DUPED BY CRIMINAL

After spending nearly three years in gaol since 1929, Ng Chau was charged before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with obtaining an electric fan from No. 12 Kwong Wah Street on August 21 by false pretences.

Detective Sergeant Poyntz said the defendant represented himself as an electric fitter and went to No. 12 Kwong Wah Street and presented the trade card of a shop in Yau-mat. Believing that everything was in order, the occupants of the floor allowed him to take the fan away.

When the defendant did not return, inquiries were made at the shop and it was revealed that defendant was not an employee there. The matter was reported to the Police and defendant was later arrested. The fan could not be recovered.

Defendant denied that he was the man who took the fan away. He said the occupants of the floor had mistaken him for somebody else.

Evidence of identification was given by three witnesses. Sentence of six months' hard labour with two years' Police supervision to follow.

about six inches in length. Afterwards, said witness, the woman went up to the chair on which the man had been sitting, and on which hung his coat, and took something out of a pocket of the coat. It was a dark, square object, not very long. Witness could not see whether the woman carried it with her into the other room.

In the darkened room the woman went up to a dressing table and started either to dress or to undress. Witness saw a light go on in the kitchen, and later saw the police enter the house. She had seen the dead man two or three days before the tragedy, he and the accused were "always together." When the police came in the woman, whom she could identify as the prisoner, was lying on the bed.

The case was adjourned.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

"THERE IS NO DAY IN THE WORLD NO GREAT POET, NO GREAT PHILOSOPHER, NO GREAT RELIGIOUS LEADER."
—Nicholas Murray Butler.

On the return of the s.s. Tung On from Canton yesterday, Captain Muir reported to the Police that a Chinese committed suicide by throwing himself overboard. All attempts to recover the body failed.

A Shanghai Chinese, who received a fountain pen which had been stolen from a Chinese during the exhibition on the Roof Garden of Sincere's on Saturday night, was convicted and sent to prison for six months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning. Defendant admitted a previous conviction.

WEDNESDAY SHOCKED

LOSE AT HOME TO ASTON VILLA

GREAT DAY FOR LONDON CLUBS

London, Aug. 28. There was a startling reversal of form when Sheffield Wednesday and Aston Villa met to-day in a league match. The Wednesday were beaten before their own supporters by the odd goal in three.

On Saturday they visited Manchester City and won 3-2, whereas the Villa, on their own ground, lost to Leicester.

Tottenham, one the promoted teams, are going great guns. They followed up their clever draw at Sheffield against the United on Saturday with a very decisive victory at White Hart Lane against Wolverhampton. They pierced the Wolves' defence four times without reply.

Leicester also continued to show winning form and proved their victory against the Villa was no flash in the pan. They trounced the United by four goals to nil.

London teams had a good day. In addition to the Spurs, Fulham recorded a victory at Craven Cottage, Millwall won at home against Swansea, Clapton Orient took points from Newport, leaving Charlton the only losing Metropolitan club.

Norwich enjoyed recording the biggest score of the day, when they rattled up seven against Bristol City.

Reading could not sustain their form of Saturday and visited Cardiff to lose by two clear goals. The following are the results cabled by Reuters:

MR. A. HENDERSON NOMINATED

LABOUR CANDIDATE FOR CLAY CROSS

London, Aug. 28. Mr. Arthur Henderson, the British Labour statesman and President to the Disarmament Conference, was to-day nominated Parliamentary Labour candidate for the Clay Cross Division of Derbyshire. The vacancy is due to the death of Mr. C. Duncan, the Labour member, who defeated Mr. J. Weinbers (National Liberal) in the last General Election by 21,163 votes to 11,611.

Mr. Henderson was Foreign Secretary in the Labour Government formed in June, 1929, but later resigned, owing to disagreement with Mr. Ramsay MacDonald over the question of unemployment benefits, and for a time led the Opposition in the House of Commons. In the last General Election, however, he was defeated by Rear-Admiral G. Campbell, the National candidate, at Burnley and has been out of Parliament ever since.—Reuters.

During the week-end, one case of puerperal fever was reported to the local health authorities.

The noise of wood being broken attracted an Indian police constable to the hillside above Regent's Park. He arrested a Chinese who carried a bundle of wood. Charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning, the man was fined ten dollars or fourteen days' gaol.

The Consul-General for the Netherlands will be "At Home" to residents of the Colony and their ladies on Thursday, August 31, when the Dutch community will celebrate the anniversary of the Netherlands.

SILVER AGAIN TO FORE

Increased Production A Disturbing Factor

U.S. CONGRESS MOVE

New York, Aug. 28. The silver question again became a disturbing factor for economists and those who are attempting to improve the position of the white metal to-day, when it was announced that world production had increased sharply during July.

Reports of the American Bureau of Metal Statistics showed that the production increased by 778,000 ounces in July. The report was especially disappointing because there had been a sharp decline in the month of June while the World Economic Conference was passing through its first month.

The gain reported to-day was more than half of the decline that took place in June while the various nations were seeking an actual reduction agreement.

The report was especially disturbing here because the bulk of the increase took place in the Western Hemisphere. Of the total increase, Canada was credited with 573,000 ounces; her July production was 1,227,000 ounces against 644,000 ounces in June.

Members of Congress and silver producers in the United States were surprised at the report. They had expected some increase but had not expected that it would be so high. These were some increase in the United States and Mexico although Europe and Burma reported slight decreases.

Move in Congress.

Production figures were issued shortly before Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, announced that a concerted move was to be made to force bi-metallism through Congress. He said the silver sponsors had already mapped out their programme and that Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, would probably lead the fight to include silver as a monetary base.

The Senator, who made his announcement in Washington, indicated that, while the position of silver would ultimately improve and that the recent agreement in London would help to bring a better price if it is ratified, something must be done to restore the metal to its former position. With the present rate of production giving little hope of reducing the surpluses, the Senator said that everything possible should be done to widen the uses of the metal.

The actual world production in July was 12,609,000 ounces, compared with 11,831,000 ounces in June. The total production for 1933, including the month of July, was given by the Bureau as 91,961,000 ounces.

The Western Hemisphere was still the worst offender from the standpoint of the silverites, producing 7,879,000 ounces during the month of July.

As indication of the rate at which newly-mined metal is moving, the Bureau said that 8,215,000 ounces were in the hands of refiners at the end of July.

To Encourage Wider Use.

Silver producers meanwhile are preparing a campaign to encourage a wider use of silver in industry. In the last three years, other metals have been widely used for utensils that were once made entirely of silver. The producers plan newspaper advertising campaigns to point out the advantages of silver.

It is admitted here that the adoption of bi-metallism would mean violent inflation, to which many Wall Street financiers and economists object. The inflation that has taken place so far, they pointed out to-day, was not due to acceptance of silver as war debt payments but due to the abandonment of gold.

They pointed out that aside from abandonment of the gold standard, most of the Administration's inflationary effort had been directed toward credit rather than currency.

There was some expansion of credit to-day when the Federal Reserve Board resumed its purchases of Federal bonds in the open market. This process has been making time for several weeks, during which purchases were reduced by fifty per cent. The resumption of the bond buying programme was construed as a general inflation move by market traders; however, despite the fact that stock prices were unable to stage a definite advance on that basis.

AUSTRIAN LEGION ON THE MOVE

Vienna, Aug. 28. Considerable speculation has been aroused here by reports that several battalions of the Austrian Legion in Bavaria are moving towards the Austrian frontier. The movement began yesterday, according to these reports, and is being continued today.

MARSHAL FENG'S PARTY!

Beans, Cabbage, Water for Mr. Sun Fo

Mr. Sun Fo was entertained by Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang on the Sacred Mountain at T'ai'an a few days ago, but only by straining to the utmost that fine degree of courtesy typical of the Chinese is he likely to accept another invitation.

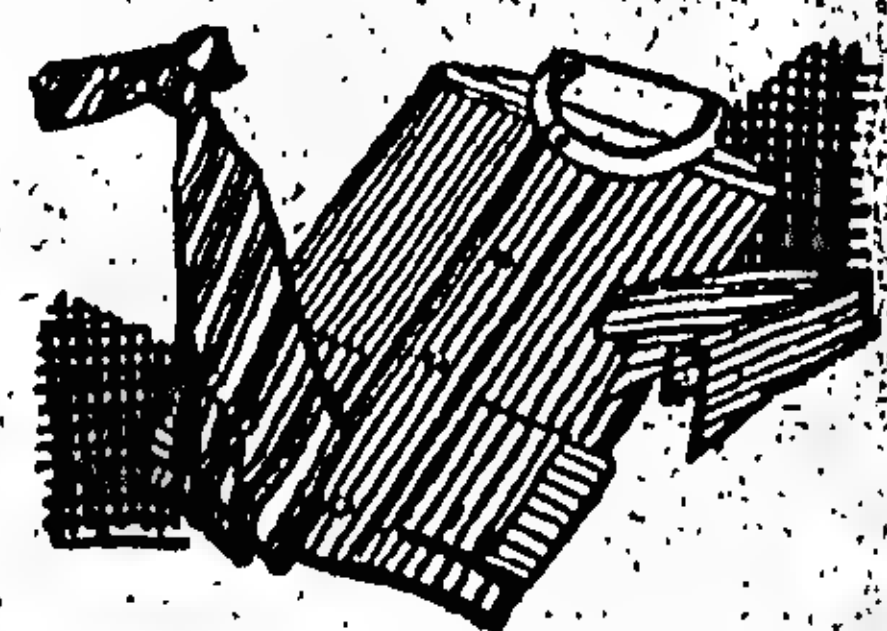

Mr. Sun and his party were greeted by Marshal Feng who conducted them on a sightseeing trip of the Sacred Mountain and afterwards promised them a grand treat in his dining hall inside Wuhsien-chih, or the Temple of the Five Sages. The dining furniture was simple. There was nothing but a crude wooden table and a few stools and the menu, ceremoniously brought in by Marshal Feng's bodyguards, consisted of a plateful of black broad bean-cakes, bean-roots, cabbage and cold water.

The Marshal professed his feast with a short speech. Said he: "T'ai'an is noted for three things, cabbage, bean-cakes and water. Now I treat you to all which I never did before. I hope you will enjoy them."

According to the Chinese newspapers, the guests were compelled to "enjoy" them for there was nothing else and Mr. Sun Fo, who had brought a tin of stuff along with him, was ashamed to open the tin in the presence of the Brookline, Aug. 28.

Frank Shields and Frankie

American National doubles tennis championship.

To-day Shields and Parker that of Turnbull and Quist at Ellsworth Vines in the semifinal round in a five set match.

Shields and Parker won by 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

The match was featured by an amazing recovery on the part of the winners. Gledhill and Vines, strongly fancied for the championship, had the match practically in their pockets. They were leading by two sets and then just wilted before their compatriots' attack.

ONE PAIR IN IT.

Keeping their mistakes to the minimum, Shields and Parker adopted a line of attack which brooked no opposition, and their dazzling net play swept Vines and Gledhill off the court.

Once the winners had captured the third set there was only one pair in it, and they went on to secure the remaining sets for the match dropping only five games on the way.

This provides additional interest to the final. At Wimbledon Turnbull and Quist served up one of the biggest sensations of the meeting by overcoming Gledhill and Vines, and now Shields and Parker have been the second pair to accomplish this in the course of two successive national championships.—Reuter.

INTERESTING COMPETITION AMONG SHANGHAI FORCES

At the Shanghai Rowing Club pool last week the local British Forces had an Area Swimming Meeting which included competition between teams from the 93rd Highlanders, East Lancashire Regiment and the Small Units and the final result showed the first named winners with 52, to the East Lancs' 32 and the Small Units 30. Several good times were put up and some interesting diving was seen for a special trophy, the Highlanders scoring 279 to the East Lancs' 277 and the Small Units' 247.

L/C. Filden recorded very good time for the 100 yards Breast stroke, covering the three laps of the pool in 34.4/5 seconds, and revealing that he is of championship class as the local championship record is only 30.1/5 seconds.

Pte. McPhee proved very successful in the straight swimming events winning the two laps in 41 seconds while he also took the 100 yards in 70 seconds. Cpl. Kildae won the 200 yards free style in 2 minutes 44 seconds which is fair time though not in line with that put up by the local stars.

The following were the results:

ROTARY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

CHINA WINS BY FIVE MATCHES

China outclassed America completely in the semi-final round of the Shanghai Rotary Cup international tennis tournament by winning five straight matches as the result of four days' play. In the last match C. C. (Guy) Cheng trimmed Maxey Smith on the C.T.C. court in three straight sets, the scores being 7-5, 7-5 and 6-0.

On Friday last the Chinese captured the first two singles, Cheng triumphing over C. C. (Dudley) Squires in a gruelling match which went the full length of five sets. On Sunday V. T. Wong won from Squires in the first crossover singles in four sets and Smith's defeat completed the series with the Chinese team winning all the contests.

Only about a dozen spectators witnessed the match, which was played more or less in the manner of practice. Cheng had the upper hand throughout, leading all the time. Smith fought hard in the first two sets but in the third set he simply tried to toss the ball over.

FAST DRIVES.

Cheng took three games in a row to establish a lead in the opening set. However, the score was brought to five all through the fine efforts of Smith in sending over swift drives while Cheng appeared to have gone slack. By winning the next two games
Cheng gained the set at 7-5.

The second set was almost a replica of the first, Cheng leading at one time by four games to one.
Smith gradually caught up and drew level at five-all. After hard raffles Cheng obtained two more games to win the set. Smith yielded in the third set, allowing his opponent to pile up point after point. Cheng captured a love set and the match.

Sussex Sure to Be Runners-Up

LATEST COUNTY CRICKET

London Aug. 28.

By their startling defeat of Yorkshire, Sussex have made almost certain of finishing runners-up in the County Cricket Championship for the second year in succession.

They have only one more match to play and a draw will be sufficient to assure them of second place.

To-day Yorkshire suffered their second outright defeat since winning the championship ten days ago, and their last three matches have yielded them only three points out of a possible 45.

The batting collapse of Yorkshire was a feature of the match.
In their first knock they scored 116. Sussex, by no means happy at the crease, scraped together 249 to give them a useful, although not a very formidable lead.

But it proved too much for the champions, who failed miserably against the deliveries of Pearce (8 for 84) and were dismissed the second time for 114 and thus lost by an innings and 20 runs.

GODDARD 10 FOR 84.

Gloucester continued their improved form by taking full toll of Hampshire and winning by an innings and 80.

Goddard bowled with marked effect. In Hampshire's initial knock he captured 6 for 56, the home team being sent back for 221.

Gloucester found scoring a much easier process and the innings realised 403. Barnett helped himself to 181 and Parker adopted the unusual role of run-getter and scored 111.

Goddard again came into the limelight when Hampshire endeavoured to avert an innings defeat. Taking four wickets for eight runs he was mainly instrumental in the dismissal of Barnett for the meagre score of 24.

CINEMA "SHOTS" AND "SEQUENCES"

ANOTHER
ROLE FOR FRED
MARCH"CYNARA" SURE
TO APPEALCOLMAN'S GREAT PERFORMANCE

(By "CELLULOID")

A PART from that box-office success To-Night Is Ours, which has been providing enjoyable light entertainment at the Queen's Theatre, the week-end film offerings in Hongkong have been somewhat below standard.

HONGKONG did not like Baroud, and this is quite understandable. In endeavouring, in his first excursion into the talkies, to accomplish the dual task of playing lead and directing the picture, Rex Ingram seemed to become inextricably confused. The general result was so poor that one found it difficult to find the slightest bit complimentary to his silent productions of The Four Horsemen and The Garden Of Allah.

THE management of the King's Theatre wisely took the film off, and to-day, as a prelude to King Vidor's Cynara, we have four showings of Plunder, which, I consider, is the best of the Aldwych cast pictures. In this Tom Walls is offered and accepts an unusual amount of scope to reveal his latent talents as a purveyor of light comedy, and with the rest of the famous cast to assist him, including Ralph Lynn, Winifred Shotter, Mary Brough and Robertson Hare, the fun is laid on thick and fast.

FOR the best all-round entertainment the Central Theatre offering at the present is as good as any. Lucky Devils, which gives vivid impressions of the risks taken by "stunt" men in the studios and on location in order to obtain the realism of the thrills, is well handled by director and actors. William Boyd is excellently cast, and good supporting work is accomplished by Dorothy Wilson, William Gargan and Roscoe Ates. In addition there is showing a sports novelty under the title of "Timing," which includes several interesting studies in golf and tennis. In the latter Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody is photographed in the course of a tournament match. Slow motion camera is brought into use to illustrate her perfect time in ground strokes and volley. This programme has its final showings to-day.

AT the Majestic Theatre, that delightfully sophisticated matrimonial comedy Bachelor's Affairs, with the inimitable Adolphe Menjou in the lead starts a short run to-day. This is one of the best comedy romances of the year. The dialogue is sparkling, the situations perfect for the suave Man-about-Town Menjou, and the whole thing efficiently handled by director and his assistants. Minna Gombell, Arthur Plerson, Joan March, and that old favourite, Herbert Mundin are included in a carefully chosen supporting cast.

AT the Queen's To-Night Is Ours continues. Hollywood seems to be intent on displaying the versatility of Frederic March, and here we have him dispensing passionate love and a little light comedy. The picture is not to be taken seriously from any viewpoint. Any attempt so to do means disillusionment, and it is a bad moment when you begin to find yourself picking holes in your favourite screen star. The whole thing is superficially personified. It is neatly, sometimes deftly, treated by Stuart Walker the director, and whatever its defects in construction and continuity, the virtuosity of Karl Struss, the cameraman, cannot be denied.

THE picture has two extraordinarily weak moments. The first is the scene in Claudette Colbert's boudoir when she is informed that it is imperative for her to give up ideas of marriage to March as she must return to her throne in one of the Balkan states, and the second, the final scene. This reaches a high pitch of mmo-drama which leaves an unpleasant recollection.

BEYOND this the film proceeds along fairly normally to its appointed happy ending. The actors on the whole make good work of their scripts and both March and Claudette Colbert add some of these distinctive touches which have put them where they are in the cinema world. When

The Mackey Twins, whose polished dancing will form an additional attraction at the King's Theatre from Sunday next.

Paul Cavanaugh is before the camera one has a suspicion that he is threatening to steal the picture from the featured players. This young man is one of the most polished actors on the screen, and in this picture he plays the part of its artificiality and offers a most pleasant study. Alison Skipworth fades into the picture and fades out just as boisterously. She is not seen at her best during the short time she is before the camera and microphone.

ALTHOUGH strictly speaking this has nothing to do with the cinema, it is, perhaps, not entirely out of place to mention a forthcoming attraction on the stage at the King's Theatre. Starting on Sunday next, September, the Mackey Twins, one of the finest dancing combinations ever to visit the Far East, are appearing on the stage at the King's, in support of the screen programme.

A six month's season at the Casino in Shanghai have made these two dancers universally popular. Popularly known as the "boys with the educated feet," they boast a repertory of dances which few others enjoy. Tap, eccentric and all other types of stage dancing is included in their programme and their appearance at the King's for one week will prove one of the best stage attractions Hongkong has enjoyed for a long time.

IF ever a picture enabled one to really know its characters—to see into their hearts and minds—then Cynara is that film. After seeing it (as you must as it starts a run at the King's Theatre to-morrow) you will feel that you have actually met Jim

Frederic March and Claudette Colbert as they appear together in "To-night Is Ours" at the Queen's Theatre.

Warlock, and you will understand quite clearly how he came to be led into a passing affair with a shop girl while still genuinely in love with his wife. Superficially, Warlock is a cad. Actually, he is a man of honour, who remains faithful to his wife in his own fashion. That is the whole point of the story, and it is perfectly illustrated in the picture.

THE seeds of Warlock's physical unfaithfulness are sown when Clemency, his wife, goes off to Venice (why Venice?), on the anniversary of their marriage, with a silly little sister who is in danger of making a fool of herself over a young man. The pretext, to say the least, is too flimsy. The girl should have been slapped and sent to bed. But it is enough for Clemency, and away she goes to Venice, leaving a disgruntled husband to his own devices. Warlock, returning to bachelor habits, goes out with his friend, John Tring, and an accidental meeting with two girls in a restaurant introduces him, more or less unwillingly, to Doris Lea, who lives in "Tottenham" and works in a shop in Shaftesbury Avenue. They go to the pictures (where they laugh at Charlie Chaplin in A Dog's Life) and he

HIS interest is aroused only when the girl manoeuvres another meeting at a local swimming gala. Even then he is not easily drawn into intimacy. Nothing could be more natural than the way in which he eventually finds himself playing the part of the girl's lover, and all the time hating himself for betraying his wife. The situation grows desperate when the wife returns. There is a brilliantly acted bedroom scene, in which she slowly realises the change in him. Then tragedy—poignant, disastrous, and utterly undeserved—envelops all three characters.

KING Vidor's direction is sensitive to the last degree. With extraordinary intuition, he permits you to see (in nine cases out of ten) exactly what the people in his film are thinking and why. It is doubtful if such penetration has ever before been displayed in screen drama. The standard of acting required is naturally high, and the players are not unequal to the demands made on them.

STABILISATION OF CURRENCIES

The visit of Mr. Montagu Norman to the United States has revived rumours of an impending stabilisation of the dollar and sterling. It is safer to assume that no definite plans are in the air, that the Governor of the Bank of England is seeking a clarification of President Roosevelt's monetary policy with a view to a possible adjustment of British policy thereto. Stabilisation at some time must, however, be the motive directing such an exchange of views, and it has to be remembered that President Roosevelt, in spite of his rejection of the London formula, in spite of his other cryptic utterances, has not slammed the door leading to stabilisation. At the same time the President's first duty is to see that nothing handicaps the recovery in the United States which is now under way, although moving slowly and not yet clear of the reefs. This is not so selfish as it sounds. President Roosevelt had a problem on his hands which demanded bold and frankly experimental measures. If he succeeds, the benefit will accrue not only to the United States, but also to all those producers in other parts of the world who sell their goods to the United States, and who have been awaiting a revival in American demand. Both his problem and his measures have been appreciated by such expert foreign observers as Mr. John Maynard Keynes, the British economist. But there is no tendency as yet on the part of other countries to embark on anything like the price reflation schemes that Mr. Roosevelt has initiated in the United States. It is not possible for the President in these circumstances to slow down his own ship to the pace of the slowest ship in the squadron. Is there any way out of what seems an impasse? There is. Let stabilisation be put on ice, save for some kind of exchange control, until American recovery has generated its own momentum; let other nations agree to put in practice a programme of price reflation to which they have paid lip service for two years past, a programme which would help to sustain primary prices without too much recourse to national measures; and then let the dollar be stabilised in the only way that it can properly be stabilised, namely, fixed in terms of some world unit of value. Stabilisation must come sooner or later. Government by uncertainty is as perilous as a world economy without it.

NOTES OF THE DAY

KOWLOON WATER SUPPLY

Kowloon registers a complaint against water restrictions on the ground that existing supplies are ample and that water will be running to waste if only an inch of rain falls. The submission is a plausible one if only the situation of the moment is to be taken into consideration, but the experiences of the last month must provide approval of the Government's policy of saving, if at all, on the side of caution. Government had no intention of imposing restrictions in Kowloon until the startling figures showing a consumption of 53,830,000 gallons during the week ended August 21. At that rate, presuming no rain fell in the meantime, Kowloon's reservoirs would be exhausted in about four months. A check had, therefore, to be applied. If the inch of rain the correspondent refers to should fall soon, the position will undoubtedly be reconsidered. In the meantime, Kowloon must accept restrictions philosophical.

JAPAN'S BUDGET

After Japan's budgetary experience of last year, more caution was anticipated in the presentation of departmental estimates for the coming financial year. In the event, however, Mr. Tashakashi is presented with a more difficult problem than ever. In spite of the urgent need for retrenchment, all the Departments are piling up immense estimates, so that the new expenditure demanded is already more than the total revenue. Perhaps they are only trying to keep pace with the army, instead of sacrificing themselves to the military machine. That seems to be the case with the Metropolitan Police Board, at any rate, which has a special expenditure budget of five millions to present to the Home Office. It wants radio apparatus, aeroplanes, and other modern police equipment. The "growing intensification of emergency sentiment" is mentioned as a reason for the orgy of spending, and the necessity for being armed against the danger of "collective outrages." Dangerous thoughts were had enough, but it looks as though patriotic "direct action" is becoming more expensive.

YOUTH'S CHALLENGE

The International Congress of Women in Chicago heard much same-counsel-and-many-ringing-and-provocative challenges. Most of the speeches came naturally from representative women in various fields of social endeavour, many of them veteran workers. But the delegates were wise. The voice of youth too, must be heard, they agreed, and so they sat and listened while thirteen college girls, three young women in industry, and one youthful editor tried to express something of their philosophy of life and their views of our social ills. It has been said that, in the world to-day, it is youth that is suffering most severely from the social revolution through which we are passing. There is evidence to support this point of view. When one of these young speakers said, "Youth must be brought out of the black, dull, individualistic reactions which the depression has brought about in us and learn the zest of doing something," she reached to the heart of the problem to-day. To youth especially belong vigour, zest, enthusiasm, and the present social maladjustment would do its utmost to rob them of their birthright.

Another young speaker, referring to the enthusiasm of her college days for world affairs, pleaded, "You must help us to keep our heads above water until we see again that vision of internationalism." But in the ugly head of adversity a precious jewel is often hidden, and it may be that both these statements give some inkling of the doubly precious jewel that is being offered the youth of to-day. For one speaker, it appears, has learned to classify "individualistic" with "black" and "dull," and the other has seen the "vision of internationalism." Are not these immeasurably valuable lessons? The age of individualism, it is clear, is passing, and it is more than possible that clear-eyed youth is already fast mastering the lesson, so difficult for many of the older generation, that not selfish acquisition, but cooperation, is to be the watchword of the new age. Youth's challenge to an individualistic outlook, a social system based on the selfishness of each man for himself, is a challenge that will not be met lightly.

DIALOGUE AND "STAR" SYSTEM THE CURSE OF THE CINEMA

WHY PRESENT-DAY FILMS ARE SO DEPLORABLE

(By "CELLULOID")

Five years ago the cinema world was rudely awakened from its peaceful pursuits of producing films which were getting appreciably nearer the qualities of true cinema by the sobbing monologue of a popular American variety artist who plaintively appealed to a boy of tender years to climb up on his knee and promise not to stray when he became of age.

This was known as the birth of the dialogue film. It was a blind, almost desperate, experiment by Warner Brothers, the American producing company. It proved an experiment which, commercially speaking, far exceeded their wildest dreams (that is if they had any). The talking film took four continents by storm, ruined hundreds of actors, caused the debacle of a cinema built up to a state nearing perfection by years of ceaseless endeavour by some of the world's finest creative minds, and left the industry in a state of "confusion worse confounded."

DIALOGUE AND THE STAR SYSTEM.

The lessons of the last five years, if they are at all to be taken seriously, tell us in unqualified tones at least two vital things: that until dialogue is eliminated from films, and American and English producing companies forsake the "star" system, the cinema, in all its beauty, artistry and drama, as expressed a decade ago by Eisenstein, Pudovkin, Von Stroheim, Erich Pommer, Pabst and others can never again be realised.

To Hollywood the cinema world owes a lot. Chief among its debts can be numbered the prostitution, by commercialisation, of the real qualities of the cinema. We owe it to America that the resources of the studio are now greater than ever before in the history of the industry; we also owe it to America that those resources are abused and misused.

Hollywood, and in its turn Elstree, and quite a number of other European producing concerns with the box-office complex, have refused to recognise the art of the cinema; have stimulated a public taste for sex films and called it "public demand"; and have fruitlessly tried to adapt the peculiar demands of the sound-dialogue to the real properties of the cinema, all the time knowing, but refusing to recognise, that those various requirements are totally incompatible.

The position to-day is that the public have actually become educated into accepting as good cinema some of the worst, and most inartistic films ever produced.

VIRTUOSITY FOR ARTISTRY.

In their persistent exploitation of the Star system, their commercially-clouded perspective of the film, its properties and its attractions, and their anxiety to obtain technical perfection, the American and English productions are for the most part devoid of the essential qualities of the silver screen. As Paul Rotha has pointed out, the majority of American productions are works of virtuosity rather than artistry.

The position we have to face to-day is that the cinema, rather than being progressive, is retrogressive.

The camera and its mobility is retarded by having to conform with sound-recording requirements. The use of the close-up, the scope and properties of which were first exploited by D.W. Griffiths, are constantly being misused, being concentrated on the facial expressions of the acting material instead of used, in conjunction with lighting effects, on inanimate objects, to heighten dramatic effect. Rhythm obtained by cutting and editing the film frames, is persistently ruined by the adaptation of dialogue which demands a different treatment. The sophisticated, but superficial, studio architecture of Hollywood and Elstree invariably bear no relation to the theme or dramatic content of the scene or sequence. Poor scenario writing, the inability of the director to create the proper atmosphere, inferior cutting, and careless editing often contribute to a montage which falls entirely to stimulate in the minds of the audience the reactions sought by the theme.

EFFICIENCY INSUFFICIENT.

Efficiency is the keynote of Hollywood. It has become the slogan of Elstree. But efficiency in itself is not true cinema. A child who plays a Beethoven sonata without a mistake may be described as efficient, but nobody would pretend to compare it with a rendering of the same piece by Paderewski. The one is just mechanical virtuosity, the other the work of a creative mind, alive to the moods of the composition and sufficiently artistic to give expression to those moods.

Fundamentally the cinema to-day is suffering from an exaggerated idea of the importance of acting material, known as "Stars", and the continuance of the sound dialogue which is diametrically opposed to the requirements of cinematic essentials.

America and England, having accepted the dialogue as something which has come to stay, is making no effort to improve their films cinematically. In technical production Hollywood still leads the world, with Elstree making rapid improvements. But they stop here, and it is still left to the Russian producers and in a lesser degree to the Germans and French (directors such as Pabst and Rene Clair) to attempt to overcome the disabilities of a five-year-old "fad," with experiments in true cinema.

Thus we have Pudovkin, now among the world's finest directors, working out a new theory in photography allied with lighting effects and cutting, which, he claims, will add much to the dramatic expression of the cinema.

REAL DRAMATIC EXPRESSION.

This conveys nothing to the general public. There is no real (Continued on Next Column.)

The Very Idea!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

By Edward Kelly, His-story.

EVER since we discovered that we had nothing but water in the brain to write up for to-day's column we have been studying history.

Pete gave us the idea when he called on us yesterday afternoon. Pete had the hiccoughs. History repeats itself.

History is a wonderful thing. Do you know, for instance, that millions of years ago, Love ran wild on this spinning globe of ours.

In those days men were slimy creatures resembling a louse, or your wife's description of yourself. The earliest men and women, who had by now reached the jolly-fish stage in life, used to meet under a stone.

This is why we call their era the Stone Age.

For our subsequent data we have read the excellent publication called Vet to Zym, published by the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

We now know that the Oyster Age came right after the original life and right before the soup.

The Oyster was the first animal born with Sex Appeal. The male oyster, with his instinctive knowledge of feminine nature, knew that if you wanted to get anywhere with a lady oyster, you'd have to give her birthday presents. So he hit upon the idea of making pearls.

This was not the only ingenious thing the Oyster ever did, for even to-day Oysters make excellent stews, cocktails, and patties.

But Oysters were different in the olden days. The Oyster of to-day is not the Oyster of fifteen million years ago—unless by any chance you go into a restaurant and order some. Then they only taste the same.

The early oyster was known as the Oysterolithic Man. Their greatest enemies were the Salmon, which were hostile and very cunning.

Salmon used to hide in time, and came out only on Saturdays, when it was the boy's day off, and visitors popped in unexpectedly for dinner.

Generally the Salmon could always be had with raw onions and beer.

Speaking of beer, we think we have spent enough time already on history. The opening of the new brewery in Hongkong is a new age. It is known as the New Be-era.

BROTHERLY LOVE

Pete had been calling every night in spite of the warnings from his lady love about her irate father. This particular evening they had been cuddled together before the fireplace planning their next move. Only the clock, announcing that the witching hour had been reached, broke the silence. Then, without warning, a thump and a click were heard, and the room was flooded with light. There, as big as fate, stood the old man, glowering and quailing at the terrified caller.

"Who in h— are you?" he belted. Pete gulped, turned pale, and appeared on the verge of fainting. But the colour returned to his face suddenly, and he rose. "I'm her brother," he said simply.

Stop us if you've heard this one before.

SHE WAS ONLY—

We shot a man to-day. And we'll tell you why. He came up to us and said:—"She is only an optician's daughter." We pulled the trigger. Then, with a last gasp, he called out to us from where he lay, "But just-give her a couple of glasses and she'll make a spectacle of herself."

son why it should. The public is not concerned with cause, but with effect. Its interest should lie exclusively with film production. Dramatic expression is an essential of the cinema, and the more artistic that form of expression the nearer does it get to being a pure cinematic quality.

Dramatic expression is not, as Hollywood and Elstree try to lead us to believe, best given through dialogue (and/or the histrionic abilities or sex appeal of actors). A more subtle treatment is necessary. Emphasis is gained by suggestion, not by blatant realism. The camera, recognised as the most formidable medium for dramatic expression, should be used to

SPECTACULAR BLAZE IN CHAPEL

Reported to Have Been Begun By Explosion

Shanghai, Aug. 26.

A spectacular blaze, reported to have been started by an explosion, caused extensive damage to a Japanese house in the area behind Hongkew Park late last night. The flames could be seen from a long way around and a great crowd was attracted to the spot. One male Japanese was injured. The house is a two-story foreign style building in Wanglo Road, on the north side of the railway line and just in Chinese territory. A foreigner gave the alarm by telephone at 11.30 p.m. and three engines from the Hongkew fire station hurried to the scene. The Chapel brigade also attended.

When the firemen arrived the flames, which were reported to have followed a sharp explosion, were blazing fiercely, but after a strenuous half-hour battle were brought under control. The firemen continued at work and the fire was completely extinguished by about 1 a.m.

The upper floor of the house and the roof were very badly damaged. At 11.55 p.m. an emergency ambulance left the Hongkew fire station and removed from the burning house a Japanese man with an injured ear, the cause of which was not known. He was taken to the Foo Ming (Japanese) Hospital, North Szechuen Road extension.

The firemen were hampered in their work at first by a large crowd of onlookers; but with the help of the police these were moved from the vital places.

CHARHAR REVOLT

GENERALS REFUSE TO JOIN NANKING

Peking, Aug. 28.

Telegrams from Kalgan indicate that both Generals Fang Chen-yu and Chi Hung-chang have failed to come to terms with General Sung Chieh-yuan, and are joining hands with Liu Kwei-tang.

A Chinese telegram from Kalgan states that a subordinate of Chang Hai-peng has occupied Kuyuan, which caused Chi Hung-chang's troops to fall back on Paochang, while from the other side General Sung Chieh-yuan has sent troops to round up both Fang Chen-yu and Chi Hung-chang. Thus, between the Chinese and Manchukuo lines, they may be dispersed and disarmed.—Reuter.

WARRIOR RETIRES.

Feng's Old Ally Wants No Nanking Post.

SERVED AS CITIZEN.

Peking, Aug. 28.

Sun Liang-cheng, an ally of General Feng Yu-shiang in his recent Charhar adventure, arrived this morning and is staying here for a few days before proceeding to Tientsin, where he will retire. Interviewed, General Sun said he had joined General Feng in order to "do his bit as a citizen of China," but he now wanted to retire into private life. He did not desire any post from the Government, he added.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 2,120,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: The market generally was dull and irregularly trading near the close due to a dip in the U.S. dollar and steadier commodities. It opened weak on account of the U.S. dollar being strong because of short covering abroad in the absence of definite inflation measures and also on account of the approaching Roosevelt-Montagu Norman conference. Traders believed that the latter includes stabilization plans but indications, however, are that the Administration will make no commitments thereon.

Our New York Office cable (This morning) Stocks: The market was quiet and strength characterized an uneventful session with rails and oils displaying the greatest firmness. Wheat weakness in sterling discouraged new buyers. Good rains in the Southwest United States. The winter wheat market is drifting awaiting new developments. Cotton: After the opening hedge selling subsided and other offerings were absorbed by heavy buying on a very small market. Heavy pressure for inflation is reported but there is no indication yet of a change in the Government's policy. Our New York Office cable (Last Night). Stocks: Any irregularity this week might be used to increase speculative advances in anticipation of further advances after Labor Day. Wheat: Essential details are not yet available but in general it is a first step toward world curtailment of production and that carried out must mean adjustment of supply to demand and higher prices. Cotton: The market lower on hedge offerings, trade taking on scale down. Private reports show increase of boll weevil, but little damage yet.

WIFE'S ALLEGED DEBTS TO
LOCAL HOTEL.

Mr. A. Wheeler, of Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son, Ltd., Queens Building, was sued at the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Anna Della Oxberry, trading as the Palace Hotel, Kowloon, to recover expenses of board, lodging and refreshments amounting to $314.68 alleged to have been incurred by defendant's wife.

Alternatively plaintiff claimed $314.68 for necessities supplied to defendant's wife who was held out to be his agent.

The particulars stated that the amounts were incurred as follows:—October $108.03, November $130.00, December $50.60, January $24.16. Mr. F. H. Leseby, of Messrs. Russ and Co., appeared for defendant, and Mr. R. H. Cole, of Messrs. Geo. K. Hall Brutton and Co., represented plaintiff.

Following a legal argument as to the form of the statement of claim, Mr. Cole opened the case. He said that in October of last year Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler came to the Palace Hotel and engaged a room for defendant's wife. Mr. Goldenberg the licensee, was also the brother of plaintiff and all four parties had known each other for a number of years.

Husband's Visits.

Room 10 was engaged for Mrs. Wheeler at the rate of $4 a day including board. Mrs. Wheeler moved into the room on October 8, subsequently moving into a smaller room. While she was at the hotel her husband frequently visited her and sometimes brought the children with him. By this conduct, he submitted, the husband held out his wife as being authorised to pledge his credit for the rooms. Demands were made to the wife and she always said the husband would pay. The bills were sent to him but remained unpaid.

If separation was to be the defence, this was an unusual case because the separation was unusual. There was no legal separation at all as far as he could understand, added Mr. Cole.

Mr. Leseby objected to his client's family affairs being broached.

Plaintiff's Evidence.

Mrs. Oxberry gave evidence bearing out her solicitor's statements. Cross-examined witness said she did not know "exactly" whether defendant and his wife were separated, but she would not have given Mrs. Wheeler credit had she not been accompanied by her husband, to whom plaintiff looked for payment. She knew Mrs. Wheeler was earning $50 a month but she could not pay her way on that. Defendant had stayed at the hotel for a few days three years ago. The wife had the custody of the children on that occasion.

Mr. Goldenberg gave evidence, and denied that he was mistaken in stating that Mrs. Wheeler was accompanied by her husband when the room was booked.

The case was adjourned to Friday, September 8.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Getting into the right contract often requires tactful manoeuvring of the bidding. A most unusually interesting hand both from the standpoint of tactical bidding and good playing is one recently played by Samuel D. Ostrow of Erie, Pa.

Mr. Ostrow sat in the South and passed, as did West. North opened with one club, and East passed.

South held two five-card suits. However, the spade suit is so weak that the better response is a forcing one over one bid of one diamond. West overcalled with a heart, North went to one no trump.

While South might have originally felt that his partner's bid of one club, being a third-hand bid, was rather weak, the overall of one no trump over West's bid now showed that North had a really fine hand. When East passed, Mr. Ostrow in the South showed his second suit, trying to find a fit, as he realized that the hand should not play at no trump. Therefore he bid two spades.

West passed and North jumped to four spades. West made a bad double, as he was sure to disclose the location of valuable high cards to the declarer.

The Play

The play of the hand was unusually interesting. West opened the king of hearts which Mr. Ostrow in the South won with the ace. In order to prevent ruffing by his opponents he immediately played trump. On his deuce, West played the nine, the ten was finessed and East won the trick with the jack.

East returned his partner's suit which South trumped with the three of spades. Another trump

♠ K-10-8	♥ J-6

♣ A-K	♥ 5-4

♠ 7-5-4-3-2	♣ 3-2

♣ J-8

was led and West went in with the ace and then swung his queen of hearts.

Mr. Ostrow in the South made a very fine play—he refused to trump the queen of hearts so as to conserve an entry in his hand for his good queen of diamonds. Instead of trumping, he played the six of diamonds. West continued with the jack of hearts, and Mr. Ostrow trumped with the five of spades.

The ace and king of diamonds were cashed and the ace and king of clubs led from dummy. Mr. Ostrow then led the ten of clubs from dummy and East made the mistake of covering with the queen. Mr. Ostrow trumped with the seven of spades and then swung his queen of diamonds. When West trumped with the queen of spades, Mr. Ostrow trumped in dummy with the king of spade and won the last trick in dummy with the nine of clubs.

If East had refused to cover the ten of clubs with the queen, the contract would have been defeated.

MOTORISTS MUST NOT PARK THERE

POLICE ACTION

As a result of complaints received, the Traffic Police are taking action against motorists parking their cars in Wellington Street.

Before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning,
Mr. C. G. Selcluna, of Savaria House, was summoned for having caused obstruction in Wellington Street, and for having used an unlicensed car.

Defendant stated he went up to the Central Station on August 1 to licence the car, but had to leave as there were so many people awaiting attention. He was about to get his licence on August 4, when he was summoned.

Mr. Schofield.—You are over a month late. They re-licence cars on July 1.

Traffic Sergeant McAnis stated that the summons were taken out as a result of complaints made.
The cars were left on the incline, and children usually meddled with them. Some time ago a coolie had been jammed against the wall as the result of one of the cars moving down the incline, as it had not been properly braked.

Mr. Schofield.—They should never be allowed to park cars there at all.

Defendant was fined $7 and $10.

ON LAN ST. OFFENCE

Mr. B. A. Proulx, of Wright & Company, was fined $7 for having caused obstruction in Wellington Street on August 4.

Mr. A. R. Wong, 109, Leighton Hill Road, was also fined $7 for obstruction in the same street.

Mr. S. D. Fong was fined $5 for obstruction in Wellington Street, Mr. Schofield remarking that as it was his first offence he would lessen the fine.

Mr. G. Young, 79 Wong Nei Chung Road, was fined $15 for having driven his car in Wyndham Street without permission from the I. G. P.

For having left his car unattended in On Lan Street, Mr.
Lo Wing-hau, 68, Village Road, was fined $5.

Traffic Inspector Alexander said

"You're A Very Naughty Boy"

BOY ADMONISHED
BY MAGISTRATE

Mak Chau, 14, a member of the Street Boys' Club was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning charged with causing an obstruction with two baskets of fruit in Rumsey Street.

Mr. Wynne-Jones.—You let these infants have fruit stalls, do you?

Sub-Ins. Sabey.—Two baskets of fruit slung on a pole.

Defendant had a previous conviction for obstruction and frankly admitted he had erased the record of it from his licence.

"You're a very naughty boy," remarked the magistrate in ordering four strokes of the cane.

LANTAU ISLAND MURDER

FARMER DRIVEN OVER EMBANKMENT

From Tai-O, Lantau Island, a report has been received of a murder in which two Chinese who are being sought for by the Police, are implicated.

The victim, Wan Kai, a farmer, was eating his evening meal outside his hut with his wife, when two men approached, accompanied by a woman.

They shouted "strike him" and rushed at the farmer with their fiats. One then picked up a heavy pole and with this struck the farmer a blow which caused him to fall backwards over an embankment.

He received head injuries from which he died.

The assailants together with the woman who accompanied them escaped.

that the I. G. P. would not allow cars to be parked there. Only a few owners, about four or five, had been given permission on payment of $20 a year. This was because they had their offices in the South China Morning Post building or in King's Building.

REBUILDING ST. LOUIS SCHOOL

GOVERNMENT GRANT
OF $8,000

VOTE NEEDED FOR VOLUNTEER CAMP

A contribution of $8,000 by the Government towards the cost of rebuilding and enlarging the St.
Louis Industrial School has been promised to the Salesian Fathers, and at Thursday's meeting of the Finance Committee, a vote for this amount will be sought.

It is estimated that this amount will be offset by a saving of $8,150 as a result of the Aberdeen Industrial Home not being ready this year.

It is pointed out that that the vote is to be met from savings under the heading of Aberdeen Industrial School which was included in the 1933 estimates.

OTHER VOTES

Other votes before the Committee will be $500 for improvements in the Volunteer Camp at Fanling and $750 for the installation of a telephone for the Medical Officer at Un Long.

It is considered desirable that further improvements should be carried out at the Volunteer Camp site near Fanling and in order to get full value it is proposed to have the work done before the 1933-1934 Camp Season opens.
No provision has, however, been made in the current estimates and a supplementary vote for $500 is therefore requested.

A full time Medical Officer is now stationed at Un Long for duty in the New Territories and in case of emergency there is at present no means of communicating with him.
It is therefore considered necessary that telephone communication should be connected up with Au Tau Police Station for use of the Resident Medical Officer and Dispensary at Un Long.

A supplementary vote for $750 is accordingly requested.
